Sinai accord progress called 'remarkable'

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger headed for Jerusalem today with the wording of a Sinai settlement approved by Egypt that could bring a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement by the weekend.

"All issues have been defined," Egyptian presidential spokesman Tahseen Bashir said. "If the response from the other side is satisfactory then there will be further progress."

Bashir said Kissinger was taking "certain formulas" to the Israelis and would return to Alexandria on Thursday night with answers.

Kissinger said before his two-hour meeting with President Anwar Sadat at Sadat's seaside villa that only "nuances" remained to be resolved in the new agreement for another Israeli pullback. He reported "remarkable progress" when he arrived in Alexandria on Tuesday.

Israeli officials in Jerusalem said today a key part of the pact already is complete and ready for signing. They said the completed section obliged both sides to refrain from "the use or threat of force" and was to be signed directly between Israel and Egypt.

The Israeli officials said the completed portion — one of three sections in the pact — also specified permission for Israeli cargo to move through the Suez Canal and inluded an appendix of maps and timetables for territorial changes. They declined to say when it might be signed, but all indications were that it would be wrapped up before the end of the week.

Sadat repeatedly stressed the importance of peace. In reply to a newsman who noted that Egypt was also regaining territory, he said: "Territory? We shall be regaining our territory. But what we are after is peace."

However, a cautionary note came from Tahsen Bashir, a spokesman for Sadat, who said 10 per cent of the agreement was still to be worked out, and this should not be "lightly dismissed."

Diplomatic sources said the major problem still unresolved was the wording of the clauses covering Egyptian guarantees to limit economic and propadanda warfare against Israel, and the possible linking of the agreement to a similar agreement between Israel and Syria.

The sources added, however, that the pace would be of unlimited duration and would not depend on future Israeli concenssions to Syria or Jordan.

Egypt and Israel will pledge not to resort to "the use or threat of force" for a period of more than three years, and Egypt will curb economic, political and propaganda warfare against Israel.

Egypt will allow Israeli cargoes to pass through the Suez Canal, and the United States will guarantee economic and military aid for Israel.

U.S. food consumption will reach 8-year low

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will be eating less food this year than they have in eight years, the Agriculture Department now predicts.

"All of the drop is in livestock products," said Anthony E. Gallo, one of the economists who puts out the quarterly national food situation report for the department's Economic Research Service.

"And virtually all of that is in pork and in poultry," he added.

The agency had been projecting a 1 per cent decline in consumption for 1975 up until Tuesday, when the summary for the Sept. 4 situation report was written.

It has now raised that to 1.5 per cent below last year's level.

In both 1973 and 1974 retail food prices rose 14.5 per cent above the previous year's average.

This year, USDA foresees an over-all increase of 9 per cent over 1974 — with most of it already having occurred in May, June and July with an explosion in meat prices that continues for pork.

In 1973, a springtime consumers meat boycott that preceded food price controls and sharp locations in the markets sent the per capita food consumption number down from the 103.8 peak of 1972 to 102.1. The chart uses a base of 100, representing the amount of food consumed per person in 1967.

If the agency's new estimate is correct, and Gallo was quick to point out it is subject to change, the index would come out at 100.96 for 1975, down from last year's recovery level of 102.5.

The reason has as much to do with supply as price, the Outlook and Situation Board said.

"Supplies of meat, particularly pork an poultry products, have been severely constricted this year because of tight supplies and high costs for livestock feeds, resulting from the drought reduced harvest of feed grains and soybeans in 1974," it said.

Property valuations increase

NEW MADRID — Assessed property valuation within New Madrid County for 1975 tax purposes totals $77,717,958, an increase of $7,340,395 increase over the 1974 valuation, according to County Clerk Jim W. Farrenburg.

All taxable items were up in valuation, Farrenburg said, except for personal property, which declined due to the exemption of household furnishings.

A breakdown in current valuations, with 1974 figures shown in parentheses, includes: townlots, $11,236,334 $10,343,655); farm acreage, $36,918,250 (32,389,045); personal property, $8,299,335 $8,972,833); merchant's and manufacturers, $3,325,033 $3,074,893); and railroad and utilities $17,939,006 ($15,597,137).

Scott offices audited

BENTON — Representatives of the state auditor's office in Jefferson City are conducting a regular audit of the records of all Scott County offices.

The time period covered is from Jan. 1, 1974 through Dec. 31, 1974, on all offices except collector.

Since the fiscal year is different for the collector's office, the audit of that office will cover the period from Mar. 1, 1974 through Feb. 28, 1975.

The team of auditors is composed of Fred Scott of Ironton, Tom Kremer of St. Louis and Dorothy Phelan of Cape Girardeau, the crew leader, who said it would take approximately three weeks to complete the audit.

Scott County was last audited for the period 1970 through 1973. That report was delivered to county officials June 17, 1974.

The state auditor is responsible for auditing the books of all third and fourth-class counties in Missouri.

State jobless rate declines

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — After Missouri unemployment figures posted a post World War II high of 8.2 per cent in June, a .7 per cent decline has been recorded for July, according to the state Division of Employment Security.

Division chief John E Meystrik, in issuing the figures Tuesday, said they showed signs that the employment picture may finally be reversing its downward trend.

He based that statement on the fact that in June there had been a reduction of 81,000 jobs from the same month in 1974, but last July the difference between last year and this year had b een cut to only 47,000 fewer jobs.

The June rate showed 173,000 persons out of work in the 2.1 million member work force while the 7.5 per cent jobless rate for July showed 158,000 Missourians without employment.

The peak in June, attributed to an influx of school graduates to the labor market, had been expected by the Employment Security Division. It followed two months of steady declines after nearly a half-year of soaring unemploymment that hit 8 per cent in March.

Simmons home is burglarized

Police arrested John Lee Hill, 1608 Osage St., for burglary and larceny after he allegedly broke into the Virginia Simmons home, 118 N. West St., Thursday night, police said.

Police said a neighbor saw the theft take place and gave police a description of the burglar.

Taken were an antique clock, electric clock, ash tray and several appliances.

Sikeston man dies

4 injured in accidents

A Malden man was injured seriously and three persons received minor injuries in three accidents on area roads Tuesday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

Also, the traffic death count on Southeast Missouri roads this year climbed to 67 at 5 a.m. today when Raymond Marshall, 50, of Sikeston died at Dexter Memorial Hospital of injuries he received in a car-truck accident two miles west of Dexter at 3:40 p.m. Monday. The death toll at this time last year was 75.

Marshall' body was taken to Bill O'Guinn Funeral Home in Sikeston, where arrangements are incomplete.

Bennie Berry, 29, of Malden sustained serious injuries in a one-car accident at 1:30 a.m. today on Route H three miles northeast of Campbell.

The accident occurred when Berry's westbound car ran off the road at an excessive rate of speed and overturned.

Berry was injured when he was thrown from the vehicle and was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Stella F. Purcell, 57, of Doniphan and a passenger in her car, John Pate, 73, of Doniphan, received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 160 west of the junction with Highway 142 in Ripley County.

The accident occurred when the westbound Purcell car attempted a left turn as it was being passed by a westbound station wagon driven by Charles Thomas Gardner, 67, of Sikeston. The station wagon struck the Purcell car in the side.

The two injury victims were taken to Ripley County Hospital in Doniphan.

At 2:15 p.m. Tuesday, on Route B five miles north of Millersville in Cape Girardeau County, Timothy G. Tinnon, 18, of Jackson, received minor injuries in a one-vehicle accident.

The accident occurred when Tinnon met an oncoming vehicle on a curve and swerved his eastbound pickup truck to the right and the vehicle ran off the road into a ditch and overturned.

He was treated at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

4,437 enroll in R-1 schools

HOWARDVILLE–A total of 4,437 students were enrolled Monday, the first day of school in New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged District schools, according to figures released by the superintendent's office.

The Portageville unit, which reported 1,286 students, led the district in unit enrollemnt. The Lilbourn unit was second highest with 991 students. Other unit enrollment figures reported include New Madrid, 938; Matthews, 706; and Parma, 516. A total of 632 students enrolled at the Vocational-Technical School.

Kindergarten enrollment for the district totaled 320, compared to 352 last year. Part of the decrease was attributed to the failure of some children to file birth certificates, which are required for enrollment.

Youth drowns near Branson

BRANSON — Douglas Butcher, 18, of rural Bloomfield drowned about 4:45 p.m. Tuesday in Table Rock Lake a t the state park marina near Branson.

He was the son of Mrs. Curtis Butcher of rural Bloomfield. The family formerly lived at Sikeston.

A spokesman for the Missouri Division of Water Safety said Butcher swam out to a buoy and was returning to shore when he disappeared in water approximately 15 feet deep.

The body was recovered at 5 p.m. by two Branson men and was taken to Welsh Funeral Home in Branson and later moved to Roch's Funeral Home in La Follette, Tenn., where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Friday.

Utility treasurer explains needs

Over 20 testify against hike

DEXTER — Only one of the more than 20 persons who testified at a public hearing conducted Monday by the Missouri Public Service Commission was in favor of a 39 per cent rate increase sought by Missouri Utilities Co. of Cape Girardeau.

J. R. Lansmon, vice president and treasurer of Missouri Utilities, told the commission members and about 70 other personss present that the firm has already laid off 10 per ccent of the work force, including some supervisory personnel, and has deferred some services the company considers essential.

"We've tried every way we know to trim operating expenses," he said. "We're postponing work that needs to be done sooner or later. We're at a point where we can't look to anyone else to bail us out. We need increased earnings."

The other persons who testified — several of whom were elderly — strongly protested the proposed increase, 10 per cent of which the PSC has already granted. Most of those testifying expressed the belief that an increase is unnecessary.

Wayne Land of Dexter, for example, told the commission members he recently watched workers for Missouri Utilities work on a light. It took five men, he said, to splice a wire.

"The guy doing the actual work needed a little help, so I started to help when I thought, here's four other guys getting paid for it," he said.

Ottie Culbertson of Dexter agreed, saying, "I don't think customers should have to pay for employes fooling away time." He said he has seen company workers waste half an hour to an hour before closing time or going to lunch.

Armed with utility bills, sometimes going back several years, many attempted to document what they considered to be rates too high.

One woman, Faye Autrey of Essex, testified that one month she had been away from home for three weeks and received a bill for $36. Yet the month before, when she had been at home all the time, the bill was for only $24.

"I'm going to have to cut down," she said. "I've already got rid of my television. I may have to go back to kerosene lamps."

Carol Baker of Dexter Route Three voiced the opinion that the PSC should compare the rates of Missouri Utilities with rates of other companies in the area.

She presented figures to back her position. Taking the number of kilowatt hours her family had used for the last five months, she said she paid $57.31 more than she would have paid if Ozark Border Cooperative had supplied the power.

"If my husband were to go to his boss and ask for a 39 per cent increase, his salary would probably be decreased 100 per cent," she said, drawing chuckles from the crowd and a comment to "keep on it."

John Oliver, representing Missouri Utilities Co., responded that a cooperative does not pay taxes. He said 50 per cent of every net dollar Missouri Utilities earns goes to pay taxes.

Lee Geary, owner of the Montgomery Ward Sales agency in Dexter, remarked that if the rates are approved, merchants will not absorb the increase but will pass on the added cost to customers.

"We should consider the effects of another increase," Mayor R. B. Woods of bernie, told the commission members. "I don't think it will bring in the amount of income the company

HOPE FOR HOUSING

The outlook is far from bullish for the long-depressed and still sluggish housing industry, but there are signs that the bears, if not exactly on the run, are getting restless.

Housing secretary Carla Hill predicts that new construction starts will reach an annual rate of 1.5 million at the end of 1975. While far below the peak rate of more than 2 million in 1971 and 1973, this would be a vast improvement over the low of 880,000 recorded in December, 1974.

The nation's savings and loan associations, which handle the bulk of mortgage loan money, achieved a major recovery in mortgage lending volume in May, when loans closed soared to an estimated $5.5 billion.

This contrasts dramatically with the $2 billion in loans closed in January of this year. The recovery from January to May was the sharpest ever seen in the savings and loan business. Latest figures for June put lending volume at $5.9 billion, an all-time record.

Also in June, total mortgage loans put on associations' books in the first six months of 1975 rose to $22.8 billion, up from the $22.3 billion recorded for the first half of 1974.

And since the banks can't lend money for mortgages unless it comes in from the other direction, the fact that savings deposits in the first six months of 1975 are already $10 billion ahead of the same period last year — $26 billion to $16 billion — is another reason for thinking that now may be a good time to buy a house.

EXPEDIENT HUMANITARIANISM

The evacuation of Cambodia's larger cities has been sensationalized in the Western press as a "death march," says an American who left that country when the U. S. - supported Lon Nol government collapsed in April.

It was, in fact, a journey away from certain death by starvation, claims William Goodfellow, an associate with the Institute for International Policy. Widespread famine was only a matter of weeks away, while in the countryside there was a sizeable surplus of food.

It may be objected that it would have made more sense to bring this food into the cities rather than to herd hundreds of thousands of men, women and children on foot into the countryside.

This was not possible, says Goodfellow, because of limited motor transport and because U.S. - supplied trucks captured from the Lon Nol forces were without fuel. Also, additional people were needed in the countryside to help plant rice, which is a very labor-intensive crop, and to increase the area under cultivation.

Moreover, he adds, "'the evacuation was politically expedient, for it enabled the new leaders to completely replace the civilian infrastructure in the cities with their own people."

It is good to learn that what was politically expedient for the new leaders of Cambodia was also, happily, a most humanitarian action.

SORRY, GLOBE

The prize news story of the week for a Missouri newspaper could hardly be denied the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, which Tuesday headlined a front page story, "Lawmakers Chop Expense Accounts After Scrutiny."

As usual, the St. Louis newspaper, which claims credit for everything that happens including sunrise and the tide, claimed credit for lowered expense vouchers submitted during the past month by members of the Missouri House of Representatives. Said the newspaper: "House members have cut their expense accounts two-thirds after news stories detailed examples of questionable expenses the lawmakers had sought to collect."

A casual reader might have missed the fact that the Globe was claiming that its news stories cut July expense requests from the previous month of June. This is like comparing oranges and apples. The expense vouchers for legislators during the month of June represented a period of time in which the General Assembly was in session, and when lawmakers are entitled to per diem expenses for living in Jefferson City. The vouchers submitted during the month of July represented lower amounts simply because the legislature adjourned June 15.

Maybe the Globe simply was taking credit for the legislative adjournment. If so, its editors should read the Constitution, which requires the lawmakers to go home on that date. We admit it's an improvement — but one for which the Globe hardly deserves credit.

His remarks are not intended to promote sales for an electric company--they are simply an exposition of the facts.

One of these facts is the necessity of employing, to some degree, forms of energy other than oil for home heating needs. In the service area of this particular company, 80 percent of the homes are oil heated. The power company representative said it is clear that we must turn more and more to the use of nuclear power and possibly to coal or coal derivatives and to such future energy sources as fusion. But only through electricity can these energy forms be utilized in our homes. In other words, only through the central station technology of modern power plants can exotic new sources of energy be converted to useful purposes in the home. Moreover, as the power company spokesman observes, there is an environmental advantage associated with electric heat. Research has shown that oil burners used to heat homes have, on the average, 70 times the polluting effect on ground-level air quality as those used to run a modern steam-electric plant and 16 times that of gas turbine plants.

The power company spokesman's words illustrate the imperative of pushing ahead in the field of energy technology with all possible speed--notably nucleac energy. The endless litigation and other obstructive tactis of environmental extremists that have delayed unconscionably the siting and construction of nuclear power plants is no longer an acceptable exercise of the democratic process.

'Life, liberty and the right to sue'

Edmund Burke, the 18th-century English statesman and friend of America, observed that "in no country perhaps in the world is the law so general a study . . . This study renders men acute, inquisitive, dexterous, prompt in attack, ready in defense, full of resources . . ."

Burke should see us now. As "prompt in attack" as ever, the litigious propensity of Americans has grown to such proportions that, on the eve of the nation's Bicentennial, we might seriously consider amending the Declaration of Independence to read: "Life, liberty and the right to sue."

The "litigation boom" — the current rush by Americans to sue over liability — may end up either by breaking down the insurance system or by pricing many products out of the reach of consumers, warns the Journal of Insurance, a bimonthly publication of the Insurance Information Institute.

The medical malpractice crisis, which affects virtually every part of the country today, is just the tip of an iceberg, writes the executive vice president of one large insurance company in a symposium in the magazine's current issue.

"Today it is doctors and hospitals telling us they cannot afford liability insurance," says Ian R. Heap of Commercial Union Assurance Companies. "Tomorrow it will be manufacturers of vital consumer products such s pharmaceuticals and foods. Downstream, unless public expectations and demands change, few business activities will go untouched."

Kenneth C. Tyler president of Truch Underwriters Assn., recalls that when he entered the insurance business in 1938 as an adjuster, claims were relatively easy to settle. Most people wanted to avoid lawsuits and their demands were reasonable.

Today, he charges, he insurance system is increasingly being used for improper purposes. He lavs the blame on what he calls "the transfer payment syndrome."

"Our elected representatives, the courts and, unfortunately, too many juries now regard it as a positive good to transfer money trom persons who earned it to persns who did not, for whatever flimsy or insubstantial reason."

The system can survive the normal risk of operation, says Tyler. "But we cannot long resist the ravages, the jack-ball blows against our walls, the deliberate destruction now being visited by our political system, our society and the courts."

Another contributor to the symposium, Stanford University president Richard W. Lyman, sees a vicious cycle at work here.

Confronted with limitations on their freedom or apparent injustices in the way they are treated in society, people demand that "somebody do something," he writes. And in the Unitede States the particular "somebodies" most often in a position to "do something" are members of the legal profession. And the "something" generally involves further regulation, further provisions for adjudicating disputes formally — in short, further expansion of that same increasingly mysterious machinery of social organization that caused the grievance in the first place.

We have come to the point, says Lyman, where the legal profession must do a thing that is rare in human history: It must take the lead in reversing a trend in our national life that is indubitably advantageous, at least in material terms, to the profession's own members.

While Americans still have a great capacity for believing in legislation and regulation as the answer to all social, political and economic ills, "surely it would be better for us," he concludes, "if we did not have to wait until the United States becomes a stalemate society, in which everyone litigates and nothing progresses."

DANGERS OF PUBLIC EMPLOYE UNIONS

Legislation has been introduced during the present session of Congress which would guarantee to all public employes the right to collectively bargain and strike.

The mood of some members of Congress seems to be that this is an idea whose time has finally come. After all, it is argued, these rights have been long possessed by private employes. Isn't it discriminatory to treat public employes any differently? We do not believe that it is.

There are several very important differences between public and private employes that make collective bargaining inappropriate in the public sector.

Most importantly, government is not a business run for profit. When UAW and General Motors sit down to bargain, both parties know that if wages are driven too high General Motors will be unable to make a profit for its shareholders, and will eventually go out of business. As a result, it is in the best interests of both parties to bargain reasonably.

On the other hand, when a union of federal employes bargains with their management--the U.S. government--there is a completely different relationship.

On the union's part, they realize that the government is not going to close shop, regardless of what their asking price is. They know that the government can either increase taxes, or go deeper in debt.

On the part of the government's negotiators, they realize that it is always more politically astute to give in to a special interest (especially one that has more than 1.6 million members) than to attempt to save a few dollars apiece in taxes for the rest of the citizens.

And unlike the General Motors bargainers, whose job may depend on securing the best terms for management, there is no similar incentive among the representatives of the government.

Another even more serious difficulty is the disproportionate impact on government policy that collective bargaining would give to public employes, simply by their being on the public payroll.

Currently, unless one is in a policy making position in the government, one theoretically has no more influence upon government policy than does any other privately employed citizen. This is as it should be.

But, with collective bargaining, public employe groups (especially their leadership) will be in position to exert influence over the size of the federal budget, budget priorities,, the number of federal employes we are to have, and the terms of their employment.

These, in our opinion, are matters that ought to be decided by the people's representatives in Congress, not at the negotiating table.

Government employes have as much right as anyone to vote for their choice for Congress, state officials, county officials and city commissioners, but should not have the right over and above any other citizen to dictate to the government how taxpayer dollars are to be used, simply because they are employed by Uncle Sam, and not by General Electric.

Strikes by public employes would also shut down vital services, the performance of which were the reasons why the government was created in the first place by the people. Because it is the government, it normally has a monooply on these services. No one else provides them.

Exclusive: USSR actually seeking record 30 million tons of wheat as Ford tries cooling boycott

WASHINGTON — The Soviets are pulling an economic Pearl Harbor on the U.S. There appears to b eno other interpretation of dramatic news which poured in on the highest government circles Wednesday.

The impact of these reports is that the USSR, desperate for grain with which to feed its people and cattle, has its agents fanning out across the U.S. secretly seeking to purchase another 20 million tons of wheat. This would send American food prices right through the superstructure of every supermarket. If successful, Moscow will have bought over 30 million tons -- not just the 10 million which has provoked the AFL-CIO threat to refuse to handle the new wheat shipments.

What such a heavy purchase would do to our inflating market is almost inconceivable. The price of meat and other farm products truly would force millions of American families to live by bread alone, if they could afford it.

First indication of the new Moscow behind-the-scenes wheat negotiations, which maritime labor leaders call "sneaky buying," according to my sources, came in a phone call Wednesday received by Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Maritime Affairs, Robert J. Blackwell. For days he had been shut in with a hard bargaining Soviet delegation which I'm told has at least one highly placed Russian KGB agent on it. Officially thisgroup is headed by Igor Averin, chief of the Foreign Relations Department of the Soviet Ministry of Merchant Marine.

They flew here to argue over freight rates for shipment of American wheat in American freighters. They must give U.S. shipping companies at least one-third of the ocean haulage business -- since President Ford personally promised this to Teddy Gleason's International Longshoremen's Assn. (AFL-CIO) on July 18, 1975.

Now according to my source, never wrong these many years, the call to Balckwell came from an executive of the grain dealers, Cook Industries of Memphis, Tenn. The caller asked what impact on the U.S. would result from a purchase of three million additional tons of wheat by he Russians.

Soon othe information flowed in. Even while the Igor Averin delegation was bargaining over freight rates for the shipping of one-third of the already purchased 10 million tons of wheat, Soviet agents were secretly attempting to buy up a total of 11 million additional tons. This would bring the amount to over 21 million -- and apparently still more orders to come.

Add this impact to the 14.4 per cent annual inflation rate reported Thursday and you see shy labor chief George Meany and longshoremen's president Teddy Gleason hold royal flushes in their tough hands -- and why President Ford put the call in to Meany Wednesday. The President knows how politically powerful the farmers are. He learned that from the saga of Harry Truman whom the farm belt elected despite the loss of New York state.

Mr. Ford doesn't yet know how he will cool Meany and company -- especially how he will handle his old friend, the Seafarer's Paul Hall, who was the first to back him for Vice President and then came to my microphone to endorse Jerry Ford for President "whenever he runs."

The President is counting on Labor Secretary John Dunlop, a sagacious man indeed, but one who is a bald-headed Samson if Meany and the maritime labor chiefs decide to balk and boycott. So in the final showdown the President decided to bargain personally with Meany, Gleason and Hall. Also with Jesse Calhoon, leader of the marine engineers and National Maritime Union president Shannon Wall.

First they agreed to see Dunlop. Then the President. Thus Jerry Ford, by coming to Meany, has acknowledged the strength of the entire American labor movement -- as more powerful than American Presidents in a waterfront war such as this. Remember that Meany laid it on the line Monday, Aug. 18, when he said he wasn't going to seek out the government. And that there would be a boycott of new wheat sales to the Soviet Union until the government came to him and American labor with some sort of statutory infrastructure which would guarantee fixed food prices for the American consumer. And the government in the form of the President came to him, as did John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Dick Nixon during previous crises on the maritime front. Nothing can force the longshoremen to load anything they don't want if they find it "obnoxious."

One high court already has set precedent for this -- as far back as 1964, when Baltimore longshoremen refused to load the British vessel Tulse Hill because the freighter had called at a Cuban port.

But there's more to this boycott than the dockers' distaste for the Brezhnev doctrines of atavistic Leninsim and Stalinism. Gleason points to the longshoremen's contract signed last October. He says the men took a "low" 8 to 10 per cent wage fringe increase in a three-year pact because the White House, the Commerce Department, the shippers and Bill Usery of the Federal Mediation Service have constantly urged a policy of no strike and waterfront "stability" upon the union.

That contract is up on late 1977. If by that time there is high double-digit inflation, the longshoremen's gains will have been washed out. And the huge wheat sales could trigger just that.

Further, he says, just look at what will happen during the big national wage negotiations next year. The higher inflation rates will force the unions to ask for far higher gains in transport, steel, construction etc., than they had contemplated. That will mean inflating the inflation.

It does sound like an economic Pearl Harbor, and a red hot inflation President Ford will have difficulty cooling.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--A move to clean up the throwaway cans and bottles that litter America has been sabotaged in the backrooms of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Every year, an astounding 60 billion throwaways are scattered across the American landscape--tossed in trash cans, strewn along roadways, dropped into lakes and streams. This not only is a staggering waste but a stupendous pickup problem.

As the first step toward reducing the debris, the EPA drafted new guidelines on June 2. These would require customers to pay a deposit on the beverage containers they purchase on federal premises. To get their deposit back, they would have to turn in their empty beer bottles and coke cans.

Although the rules would apply only to national parks, miiitary camps and other federal facilities, the intention also was to encourage cities, counties and states to adopt similar measures.

But if this seemed a simple, logical solution, the advocates at EPA didn't reckon with the greed of the manufacturers, who rake in huge profits from throwaways.

Nor did the advocates take into account the political power of the likes of the U.S. Brewers Assn., Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals, Can Manufacturers Institute, National Soft Drink assn. and Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

The story of what happened has been carefully locked in EPA files, where it was supposed to be hidden from the public. But we have obtained the suppressed memos and letters.

The manufacturers of cans and bottles are spending $20 million to thwart the EPA clean up scheme. Even more dismaying, the container tycoons have been able to pull strings inside the EPA and to get inside information for their lobbying campaign.

For example, the June 2 guidelines were supposed to be kept secret until they were published in the Federal Register. The purpose of this rule is to prevent undue political pressure at the planning level.

But on June 19, copies of the draft guidelines were slipped to the can-and-bottle lobby. The official who leaked the material was EPA's solid waste director, H. Lanier Hickman. We have a copy of his transmittal letter asking the industry for its "review and comment." None of the material was leaked to the environmentalists, who were equally interested in the guidelines.

Armed with inside information, the powerful lobby began to mobilize against the EPA plan even as EPA chief Russell Train was proclaiming his public support of "a mandatory deposit measure."

The U.S. Brewers, for example, distributed a costly, 38-page lobbying package to beer wholesalers. They were urged to write their local congressmen. Legal opinions, economic arguments and other helpful letter-writing hints were included. The names were also listed of every senator and congressman who might conceivably have anything to do with the throwaway problem.

Already this lobbying campaign has stimulated a flood of letters to EPA from Capitol Hill. More than 200 members of Congress have written to EPA about their guidelines.

Yet Hickman, far from being punished for alerting the industry, has been promoted. Other EPA officials met privately on August 13 with representatives from Reynolds Metals, American Can, U.S. Brewers, Coca-Cola, bethelem Steel, Owens-Illinois and related unions.

The confidential minutes show, incredibly, that another top EPA official, Acting Deputy Assistant Administrator Robert Colonna, slipped the lobbyists "copies of the comments made by other federal agencies during our agency review."

These comments, which are supposed to be strictly private, can now be used by the throwaway lobby to bring pressure on the other agencies that support the deposit measure.

The confidential minutes also note: "It is no secret that most of the people present would like to quash the beverage container guidelines completely."

As a result of the pressure that the industry had been able to mount behind the scenes, the EPA has now knocked out of the guidelines the recommendation calling for state and local governments to join in the battle against throwaways.

Footnote: Hickman explained that he and Colonna had merely meant to get the objections of the industry so that the final guidelines would need fewer changes. There was no intent to favor industry, he said, nor was it illegal to give them the documents.

FIGHTING CONGRESSMEN: With flying fists and feet, half-a-dozen members of Congress will battle for the karate championships of Capitol Hill on September 14 at Washington's D.C. Armory. The Senate will put up Sen. Quentin Burdick, R.-N.D., vs. Sen. Ted Stevens, R.-Alaska. Burdick has been trimming down for the bout and Stevens has been receiving daily private lessons from karate master Jhoon Rhee.

From the House side, Rep. Tom Bevill, D.-Ala., will fight Rep. Floyd Spence, R.-S.C., and Rep. Walter Fauntroy, D.-D.C. will square off against Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr., R.-Ohio. The proceeds will go to a legal defense fund to help investigative reporters.

Research has shown that oil burners used to heat homes have, on the average, 70 times the polluting effect on ground-level air quality as those used to run a modern steam-electric plant and 16 times that of gas turbine plants.

The power company spokesman's words illustrate the imperative of pushing ahead in the field of energy technology with all possible speed--notably nucleac energy. The endless litigation and other obstructive tactis of environmental extremists that have delayed unconscionably the siting and construction of nuclear power plants is no longer an acceptable exercise of the democratic process.

'Life, liberty and the right to sue'

Edmund Burke, the 18th-century English statesman and friend of America, observed that "in no country perhaps in the world is the law so general a study . . . This study renders men acute, inquisitive, dexterous, prompt in attack, ready in defense, full of resources . . ."

Burke should see us now. As "prompt in attack" as ever, the litigious propensity of Americans has grown to such proportions that, on the eve of the nation's Bicentennial, we might seriously consider amending the Declaration of Independence to read: "Life, liberty and the right to sue."

The "litigation boom" — the current rush by Americans to sue over liability — may end up either by breaking down the insurance system or by pricing many products out of the reach of consumers, warns the Journal of Insurance, a bimonthly publication of the Insurance Information Institute.

The medical malpractice crisis, which affects virtually every part of the country today, is just the tip of an iceberg, writes the executive vice president of one large insurance company in a symposium in the magazine's current issue.

"Today it is doctors and hospitals telling us they cannot afford liability insurance," says Ian R. Heap of Commercial Union Assurance Companies. "Tomorrow it will be manufacturers of vital consumer products such s pharmaceuticals and foods. Downstream, unless public expectations and demands change, few business activities will go untouched."

Kenneth C. Tyler president of Truch Underwriters Assn., recalls that when he entered the insurance business in 1938 as an adjuster, claims were relatively easy to settle. Most people wanted to avoid lawsuits and their demands were reasonable.

Today, he charges, he insurance system is increasingly being used for improper purposes. He lavs the blame on what he calls "the transfer payment syndrome."

"Our elected representatives, the courts and, unfortunately, too many juries now regard it as a positive good to transfer money trom persons who did not, for whatever flimsy or insubstantial reason."

The system can survive the normal risk of operation, says Tyler. "But we cannot long resist the ravages, the jack-ball blows against our walls, the deliberate destruction now being visited by our political system, our society and the courts."

Another contributor to the symposium, Stanford University president Richard W. Lyman, sees a vicious cycle at work here.

Confronted with limitations on their freedom or apparent injustices in the way they are treated in society, people demand that "somebody do something," he writes. And in the Unitede States the particular "somebodies" most often in a position to "do something" are members of the legal profession. And the "something" generally involves further regulation, further provisions for adjudicating disputes formally — in short, further expansion of that same increasingly mysterious machinery of social organization that caused the grievance in the first place.

We have come to the point, says Lyman, where the legal profession must do a thing that is rare in human history: It must take the lead in reversing a trend in our national life that is indubitably advantageous, at least in material terms, to the profession's own members.

While Americans still have a great capacity for believing in legislation and regulation as the answer to all social, political and economic ills, "surely it would be better for us," he concludes, "if we did not have to wait until the United States becomes a stalemate society, in which everyone litigates and nothing progresses."

DANGERS OF PUBLIC EMPLOYE UNIONS

Legislation has been introduced during the present session of Congress which would guarantee to all public employes the right to collectively bargain and strike.

The mood of some members of Congress seems to be that this is an idea whose time has finally come. After all, it is argued, these rights have been long possessed by private employes. Isn't it discriminatory to treat public employes any differently? We do not believe that it is.

There are several very important differences between public and private employes that make collective bargaining inappropriate in the public sector.

Most importantly, government is not a business run for profit. When UAW and General Motors sit down to bargain, both parties know that if wages are driven too high General Motors will be unable to make a profit for its shareholders, and will eventually go out of business. As a result, it is in the best interests of both parties to bargain reasonably.

On the other hand, when a union of federal employes bargains with their management--the U.S. government--there is a completely different relationship.

On the union's part, they realize that the government is not going to close shop, regardless of what their asking price is. They know that the government can either increase taxes, or go deeper in debt.

On the part of the government's negotiators, they realize that it is always more politically astute to give in to a special interest (especially one that has more than 1.6 million members) than to attempt to save a few dollars apiece in taxes for the rest of the citizens.

And unlike the General Motors bargainers, whose job may depend on securing the best terms for management, there is no similar incentive among the representatives of the government.

Another even more serious difficulty is the disproportionate impact on government policy that collective bargaining would give to public employes, simply by their being on the public payroll.

Currently, unless one is in a policy making position in the government, one theoretically has no more influence upon government policy than does any other privately employed citizen. This is as it should be.

But, with collective bargaining, public employe groups (especially their leadership) will be in position to exert influence over the size of the federal budget, budget priorities,, the number of federal employes we are to have, and the terms of their employment.

These, in our opinion, are matters that ought to be decided by the people's representatives in Congress, not at the negotiating table.

Government employes have as much right as anyone to vote for their choice for Congress, state officials, county officials and city commissioners, but should not have the right over and above any other citizen to dictate to the government how taxpayer dollars are to be used, simply because they are employed by Uncle Sam, and not by General Electric.

Strikes by public employes would also shut down vital services, the performance of which were the reasons why the government was created in the first place by the people. Because it is the government, it normally has a monooply on these services. No one else provides them.

Inside Labor

Exclusive: USSR actually seeking record 30 million tons of wheat as Ford tries cooling boycott

WASHINGTON — The Soviets are pulling an economic Pearl Harbor on the U.S. There appears to b eno other interpretation of dramatic news which poured in on the highest government circles Wednesday.

The impact of these reports is that the USSR, desperate for grain with which to feed its people and cattle, has its agents fanning out across the U.S. secretly seeking to purchase another 20 million tons of wheat. This would send American food prices right through the superstructure of every supermarket. If successful, Moscow will have bought over 30 million tons -- not just the 10 million which has provoked the AFL-CIO threat to refuse to handle the new wheat shipments.

What such a heavy purchase would do to our inflating market is almost inconceivable. The price of meat and other farm products truly would force millions of American families to live by bread alone, if they could afford it.

First indication of the new Moscow behind-the-scenes wheat negotiations, which maritime labor leaders call "sneaky buying," according to my sources, came in a phone call Wednesday received by Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Maritime Affairs, Robert J. Blackwell. For days he had been shut in with a hard bargaining Soviet delegation which I'm told has at least one highly placed Russian KGB agent on it. Officially thisgroup is headed by Igor Averin, chief of the Foreign Relations Department of the Soviet Ministry of Merchant Marine.

They flew here to argue over freight rates for shipment of American wheat in American freighters. They must give U.S. shipping companies at least one-third of the ocean haulage business -- since President Ford personally promised this to Teddy Gleason's International Longshoremen's Assn. (AFL-CIO) on July 18, 1975.

Now according to my source, never wrong these many years, the call to Balckwell came from an executive of the grain dealers, Cook Industries of Memphis, Tenn. The caller asked what impact on the U.S. would result from a purchase of three million additional tons of wheat by he Russians.

Soon othe information flowed in. Even while the Igor Averin delegation was bargaining over freight rates for the shipping of one-third of the already purchased 10 million tons of wheat, Soviet agents were secretly attempting to buy up a total of 11 million additional tons. This would bring the amount to over 21 million -- and apparently still more orders to come.

Add this impact to the 14.4 per cent annual inflation rate reported Thursday and you see shy labor chief George Meany and longshoremen's president Teddy Gleason hold royal flushes in their tough hands -- and why President Ford put the call in to Meany Wednesday. The President knows how politically powerful the farmers are. He learned that from the saga of Harry Truman whom the farm belt elected despite the loss of New York state.

Mr. Ford doesn't yet know how he will cool Meany and company -- especially how he will handle his old friend, the Seafarer's Paul Hall, who was the first to back him for Vice President and then came to my microphone to endorse Jerry Ford for President "whenever he runs."

The President is counting on Labor Secretary John Dunlop, a sagacious man indeed, but one who is a bald-headed Samson if Meany and the maritime labor chiefs decide to balk and boycott. So in the final showdown the President decided to bargain personally with Meany, Gleason and Hall. Also with Jesse Calhoon, leader of the marine engineers and National Maritime Union president Shannon Wall.

First they agreed to see Dunlop. Then the President. Thus Jerry Ford, by coming to Meany, has acknowledged the strength of the entire American labor movement -- as more powerful than American Presidents in a waterfront war such as this. Remember that Meany laid it on the line Monday, Aug. 18, when he said he wasn't going to seek out the government. And that there would be a boycott of new wheat sales to the Soviet Union until the government came to him and American labor with some sort of statutory infrastructure which would guarantee fixed food prices for the American consumer. And the government in the form of the President came to him, as did John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Dick Nixon during previous crises on the maritime front. Nothing can force the longshoremen to load anything they don't want if they find it "obnoxious."

One high court already has set precedent for this -- as far back as 1964, when Baltimore longshoremen refused to load the British vessel Tulse Hill because the freighter had called at a Cuban port.

But there's more to this boycott than the dockers' distaste for the Brezhnev doctrines of atavistic Leninsim and Stalinism. Gleason points to the longshoremen's contract signed last October. He says the men took a "low" 8 to 10 per cent wage fringe increase in a three-year pact because the White House, the Commerce Department, the shippers and Bill Usery of the Federal Mediation Service have constantly urged a policy of no strike and waterfront "stability" upon the union.

That contract is up on late 1977. If by that time there is high double-digit inflation, the longshoremen's gains will have been washed out. And the huge wheat sales could trigger just that.

Further, he says, just look at what will happen during the big national wage negotiations next year. The higher inflation rates will force the unions to ask for far higher gains in transport, steel, construction etc., than they had contemplated. That will mean inflating the inflation.

It does sound like an economic Pearl Harbor, and a red hot inflation President Ford will have difficulty cooling.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON--A move to clean up the throwaway cans and bottles that litter America has been sabotaged in the backrooms of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Every year, an astounding 60 billion throwaways are scattered across the American landscape--tossed in trash cans, strewn along roadways, dropped into lakes and streams. This not only is a staggering waste but a stupendous pickup problem.

As the first step toward reducing the debris, the EPA drafted new guidelines on June 2. These would require customers to pay a deposit on the beverage containers they purchase on federal premises. To get their deposit back, they would have to turn in their empty beer bottles and coke cans.

Although the rules would apply only to national parks, military camps and other federal facilities, the intention also was to encourage cities, counties and states to adopt similar measures.

But if this seemed a simple, logical solution, the advocates at EPA didn't reckon with the greed of the manufacturers, who rake in huge profits from throwaways.

Nor did the advocates take into account the political power of the likes of the U.S. Brewers Assn., Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals, Can Manufacturers Institute, National Soft Drink assn. and Glass Container Manufacturers Institute.

The story of what happened has been carefully locked in EPA flies, where it was supposed to be hidden from the public. But we have obtained the suppressed memos and letters.

The manufacturers of cans and bottles are spending $20 million to thwart the EPA clean up scheme. Even more dismaying, the container tycoons have been able to pull strings inside the EPA and to get inside information for their lobbying campaign.

For example, the June 2 guidelines were supposed to be kept secret until they were published in the Federal Register. The purpose of this rule is to prevent undue political pressure at the planning level.

But on June 19, copies of the draft guidelines were slipped to the can-and-bottle lobby. The official who leaked the material was EPA's solid waste director, H. Lanier Hickman. We have a copy of his transmittal letter asking the industry for its "review and comment." None of the material was leaked to the environmentalists, who were equally interested in the guidelines.

Armed with inside information, the powerful lobby began to mobilize against the EPA plan even as EPA chief Russell Train was proclaiming his public support of "a mandatory deposit measure."

The U.S. Brewers, for example, distributed a costly, 38-page lobbying package to beer wholesalers. They were urged to write their local congressmen. Legal opinions, economic arguments and other helpful letter-writing hints were included. The names were also listed of every senator and congressman who might conceivably have anything to do with the throwaway problem.

Already this lobbying campaign has stimulated a flood of letters to EPA from Capitol Hill. More than 200 members of Congress have written to EPA about their guidelines.

Yet Hickman, far from being punished for alerting the industry, has been promoted. Other EPA officials met privately on August 13 with representatives from Reynolds Metals, American Can, U.S. Brewers, Coca-Cola, bethelem Steel, Owens-Illinois and related unions.

The confidential minutes show, incredibly, that another top EPA official, Acting Deputy Assistant Administrator Robert Colonna, slipped the lobbyists "copies of the comments made by other federal agencies during our agency review."

These comments, which are supposed to be strictly private, can now be used by the throwaway lobby to bring pressure on the other agencies that support the deposit measure.

The confidential minutes also note: "It is no secret that most of the people present would like to quash the beverage container guidelines completely."

As a result of the pressure that the industry had been able to mount behind the scenes, the EPA has now knocked out of the guidelines the recommendation calling for state and local governments to join in the battle against throwaways.

Footnote: Hickman explained that he and Colonna had merely meant to get the objections of the industry so that the final guidelines would need fewer changes. There was no intent to favor industry, he said, nor was it illegal to give them the documents.

FIGHTING CONGRESSMEN: With flying fists and feet, half-a-dozen members of Congress will battle for the karate championships of Capitol Hill on September 14 at Washington's D.C. Armory. The Senate will put up Sen. Quentin Burdick, R.-N.D., vs. Sen. Ted Stevens, R.-Alaska. Burdick has been trimming down for the bout and Stevens has been receiving daily private lessons from karate master Jhoon Rhee.

From the House side, Rep. Tom Bevill, D.-Ala., will fight Rep. Floyd Spence, R.-S.C., and Rep. Walter Fauntroy, D.-D.C. will square off against Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr., R.-Ohio. The proceeds will go to a legal defense fund to help investigative reporters.

CIRCUIT COURT

NEW MADRID—Four guilty pleas were accepted in criminal cases Tuesday by Judge William L. Ragland.
Richard Reno pleaded guilty to common assault Aug 1 upon Jo Ann Davis by striking her about the face and body. He was fined $25 plus costs and given a six-month suspended jail sentence.
Dennis Mainord pleaded guilty to peace disturbance by discharging firearms. He was fined $25 and costs and given a six-month suspended jail sentence.
James Henry Cook pleaded guilty to forgery and was sentenced to a two-year term in custody of the Department of Corrections, then granted probation with supervision. The sentence is to run concurrently with a sentence imposed for a previous conviction of burglary and larceny.
Cook was sentenced Jan. 3, 1973 to consecutive two-year terms for burglary and larceny and granted probation with supervision. Probation was later revoked. Cook then filed a motion to vacate sentence and revocation order and sought a new trial. Judge Ragland sustained that part of the motion, vacating the revocation order, and denied a new trial.
David Turner of St. Louis, pleaded guilty to burglary and stealing charges and was sentenced to two-year terms on each charge to run concurrently in the custody of the Department of Corrections.
A change of name from Minnie Lee Suttles to Minnie Lee Lawson was approved by Judge Ragland.
James Kenneth Riley of morehouse was ordered to pay $100 per month support in a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act case filed by the state of New Mexico at the relation of Mildred Riley.
A suit for damages filed by Doyle Murphy against Roosevelt Jackson in connection with an automobile accident on June 15 was dismissed without prejudice by the plaintiff.

EMERGENCY PATIENTS

Accident patients treated and released Tuesday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital were:
Jessie Hull, 21, Charleston, sprained shoulder; Floyd Wilkerson, 40, Morehouse, cut brow; Donna Cox, 9, Charleston, cuts and bruises in car accident; Deidre DeLaney, 18 months, Sikeston, cut lip in fall; William Tarnigan, 37, Matthews, bruised shoulder; Anthony Elliott, 8, Sikeston, cut chin in fall; Judith Menz, 29, cut scalp in car accident; Ben Lambert, 7, Sikeston, fractured knee at school; Debbie Allen, 24, Charleston, sprained shoulder in car accident; and Jon Allen, 1, Charleston, multiple bruises in car accident.

POLICE ARRESTS

CIRCUIT COURT

NEW MADRID—Four guilty pleas were accepted in criminal cases Tuesday by Judge William L. Ragland.
Richard Reno pleaded guilty to common assault Aug 1 upon Jo Ann Davis by striking her about the face and body. He was fined $25 plus costs and given a six-month suspended jail sentence.
Dennis Mainord pleaded guilty to peace disturbance by discharging firearms. He was fined $25 and costs and given a six-month suspended jail sentence.
James Henry Cook pleaded guilty to forgery and was sentenced to a two-year term in custody of the Department of Corrections, then granted probation with supervision. The sentence is to run concurrently with a sentence imposed for a previous conviction of burglary and larceny.
Cook was sentenced Jan. 3, 1973 to consecutive two-year terms for burglary and larceny and granted probation with supervision. Probation was later revoked. Cook then filed a motion to vacate sentence and revocation order and sought a new trial. Judge Ragland sustained that part of the motion, vacating the revocation order, and denied a new trial.
David Turner of St. Louis, pleaded guilty to burglary and stealing charges and was sentenced to two-year terms on each charge to run concurrently in the custody of the Department of Corrections.
A change of name from Minnie Lee Suttles to Minnie Lee Lawson was approved by Judge Ragland.
James Kenneth Riley of morehouse was ordered to pay $100 per month support in a Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act case filed by the state of New Mexico at the relation of Mildred Riley.
A suit for damages filed by Doyle Murphy against Roosevelt Jackson in connection with an automobile accident on June 15 was dismissed without prejudice by the plaintiff.

EMERGENCY PATIENTS

Accident patients treated and released Tuesday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital were:
Jessie Hull, 21, Charleston, sprained shoulder; Floyd Wilkerson, 40, Morehouse, cut brow; Donna Cox, 9, Charleston, cuts and bruises in car accident; Deidre DeLaney, 18 months, Sikeston, cut lip in fall; William Tarnigan, 37, Matthews, bruised shoulder; Anthony Elliott, 8, Sikeston, cut chin in fall; Judith Menz, 29, cut scalp in car accident; Ben Lambert, 7, Sikeston, fractured knee at school; Debbie Allen, 24, Charleston, sprained shoulder in car accident; and Jon Allen, 1, Charleston, multiple bruises in car accident.

POLICE ARRESTS

John Lee Hill, 1608 Osage St., burglary and larceny.
Paul Easkin, Box 568, maintaining a public nuisance.
Roy William Aslup, Royte Two, ran stop sign.

Management team meets

Mobile medical clinic opens

ST. CHARLES--Para-Medical Laboratories, Inc., with facilities throughout Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Illinois, Tennessee and Indiana, announces the opening of new mobile facilities in Dexter and Sikeston.

The primary service of the St. Charles firm is to perform insurance health examinations for the more than 130 life insurance companies in North America, from which it has received approval.

The concept, which has been accepted by the American Medical Association, originally came into existence to relieve the medical field which is already far below the population growth in manpower, with an ever increasing shortage of doctors.

The new mobile facility in Sikeston will be headed by Carolyn Burton, while the Dexter facility will be headed by Marguerite Hunt. Both are registered nurses.

The nurses can conduct a simple examination which takes about 20 minutes, at a preset time convenient to the applicant without any waiting time at a location designated by the applicant. This could be his or her home, place of business or some other location.

Company recognizes change

The mangement of Chas. Todd Inc. held its semiannual team meeting Aug. 19 at the Sikeston plant, 400 N. West St.

Todd SeMo is one of 18 uniform rental plant operations, with other branches located in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Iowa and a manufacturing plant in Tennessee.

Attending the meeting were Charles Todd Jr. of St. Louis, president; Joe Morris of St. Louis, regional manager; Thomas Fucoloro of St. Louis, corporate general manager; and from the Sikeston plant, Larry Wall, general manager; Jerry Holland, Bill Estes and Jim Crest, district managers; and Gale Johnson, production manager.

Following an executive-employe luncheon, Todd presented service pins and profit-sharing certificates to the employes.

Chas. Todd Inc. has been in the textile maintenance business almost a century and prides itself in its reputation as a quality operator.

Recognizing the changing needs and life styles of the 1970s, the firm has committeed itself to research and in-depth analysis to provide appropriate environmental apparel to suit the total requirements of its customers. Services and facilities have been structured with the capacity to supply almost any type of garment from an apron to a custom-designed uniform. Todd not only rents, but is a large retailer of uniforms.

Focus on business

Malone & Hyde announce record sales and earnings

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—J.R. Hyde III, president of Malone & Hyde, Inc., has announced record sales, earnings and earnings per share by the wholesale grocery firm for the 21st consecutive year.

Sales for the 52 weeks ended June 28 were $887,176,000. This was an increase of $168,603,000, or 23.46 per cent over sales of $718,573,000 for the prior year.

Net income totaled $12,200,000, up $2,469,000 or 25.37 per cent over net income from continuing operations of $9,731,000 in fiscal 1974.

Earnings per share for fiscal 1975 were $1.83 up 23.65 per cent compared to $1.48 per share from continuing operations in fiscal 1974.

Hyde stated that he "attributes the strong sales and earnings to the outstanding performance of Malone & Hyde's owner-operated super market customers. Our nine distribution centers (including the one in Sikeston, Mo.) currently supply over 2,000 independent supermarkets throughout a 15-state area. Indicative of the success of these independent merchants is the fact that last year our customers opened 117 new supermarkets, compared to 91 new units in fiscal 1974 and 44 new supermarkets in fiscal 1973."

To keep pace with the rapidly expanding wholesale volume, Malone & Hyde has undertaken an aggressive warehouse expansion program. Within the past four months, 671,000 square feet of new warehouse facilities have opened. The Beaumont, Tex., and Monroe, La. divisions moved into new 260,000-square foot warehouses in May.

On Aug. 4, the Memphis division began shipping merchandise out of its new 151,000-square foot perishable warehouse. The enlarged refrigerated facility will enable the division to continue to give its customers the best service and widest product selection possible in fresh produce, dairy products, frozen foods and boxed meats.

Mobile medical clinic opens

ST. CHARLES--Para-Medical Laboratories, Inc., with facilities throughout Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Illinois, Tennessee and Indiana, announces the opening of new mobile facilities in Dexter and Sikeston.

The primary service of the St. Charles firm is to perform insurance health examinations for the more than 130 life insurance companies in North America, from which it has received approval.

The concept, which has been accepted by the American Medical Association, originally came into existence to relieve the medical field which is already far below the population growth in manpower, with an ever increasing shortage of doctors.

The new mobile facility in Sikeston will be headed by Carolyn Burton, while the Dexter facility will be headed by Marguerite Hunt. Both are registered nurses.

The nurses can conduct a simple examination which takes about 20 minutes, at a preset time convenient to the applicant without any waiting time at a location designated by the applicant. This could be his or her home, place of business or some other location.

Company recognizes change

The mangement of Chas. Todd Inc. held its semiannual team meeting Aug. 19 at the Sikeston plant, 400 N. West St.

Todd SeMo is one of 18 uniform rental plant operations, with other branches located in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Iowa and a manufacturing plant in Tennessee.

Attending the meeting were Charles Todd Jr. of St. Louis, president; Joe Morris of St. Louis, regional manager; Thomas Fucoloro of St. Louis, corporate general manager; and from the Sikeston plant, Larry Wall, general manager; Jerry Holland, Bill Estes and Jim Crest, district managers; and Gale Johnson, production manager.

Following an executive-employe luncheon, Todd presented service pins and profit-sharing certificates to the employes.

Chas. Todd Inc. has been in the textile maintenance business almost a century and prides itself in its reputation as a quality operator.

Recognizing the changing needs and life styles of the 1970s, the firm has committeed itself to research and in-depth analysis to provide appropriate environmental apparel to suit the total requirements of its customers. Services and facilities have been structured with the capacity to supply almost any type of garment from an apron to a custom-designed uniform. Todd not only rents, but is a large retailer of uniforms.

Malone & Hyde announce record sales and earnings

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—J.R. Hyde III, president of Malone & Hyde, Inc., has announced record sales, earnings and earnings per share by the wholesale grocery firm for the 21st consecutive year.

Sales for the 52 weeks ended June 28 were $887,176,000. This was an increase of $168,603,000, or 23.46 per cent over sales of $718,573,000 for the prior year.

Net income totaled $12,200,000, up $2,469,000 or 25.37 per cent over net income from continuing operations of $9,731,000 in fiscal 1974.

Earnings per share for fiscal 1975 were $1.83 up 23.65 per cent compared to $1.48 per share from continuing operations in fiscal 1974.

Hyde stated that he "attributes the strong sales and earnings to the outstanding performance of Malone & Hyde's owner-operated super market customers. Our nine distribution centers (including the one in Sikeston, Mo.) currently supply over 2,000 independent supermarkets throughout a 15-state area. Indicative of the success of these independent merchants is the fact that last year our customers opened 117 new supermarkets, compared to 91 new units in fiscal 1974 and 44 new supermarkets in fiscal 1973."

To keep pace with the rapidly expanding wholesale volume, Malone & Hyde has undertaken an aggressive warehouse expansion program. Within the past four months, 671,000 square feet of new warehouse facilities have opened. The Beaumont, Tex., and Monroe, La. divisions moved into new 260,000-square foot warehouses in May.

On Aug. 4, the Memphis division began shipping merchandise out of its new 151,000-square foot perishable warehouse. The enlarged refrigerated facility will enable the division to continue to give its customers the best service and widest product selection possible in fresh produce, dairy products, frozen foods and boxed meats.

5¢ candy bar

Where did it go?

WASHINGTON, D.C. That nickel chocolate bar most of us remember isn't a nickel anymore. Neither is that penny piece of candy a penny. Both have gone the route of the 10-cent cup of coffee and the nickel newspaper.

Higher prices certainly are a fact of life, something that becomes all too apparent with each trip to the supermarket or department store or restaurant, etc.

No one likes higher prices, least of all the chocolate manufacturers. The higher the price, the less chocolate you, the consumer, will tend to buy, according to Richard T. O'Connell, president of the Chocolate Manufacturers Association.

Though it won't soften the blow to the pocketbook, knowing the "whys" behind the price increases will make that blow more understandable.

Chocolate is made primarily from cocoa beans (from which chocolate liquor and cocoa butter are derived) and sugar. The prices of both commodities have spiraled during the past few years.

One word of caution: Prices fluctuate daily. Quoting prices is a risky business; those used here are meant only to indicate trends.

Now, let's look at what's happened recently to the prices of cocoa beans and sugar -- the essential raw materials of chocolate manufactrure.

In 1971, the average price on the New York commodity market for cocoa beans grown in Ghana, he world's largest producer, was 26 cents per pound. In 1972, the average price was 32 cents per pound; in 1973 it was 64 cents and in 1974 it was 98 cents.

In the fall of 1974, the price actually reached $1.30 per pound -- an all-time high. On Aug. 20, the cash price of cocoa beans was 77.7 cents per pound, well below the astronomical levels of last year but still more than 200 per cent above the 1972 average price and almostr 300 per cent higher than the 1971 average price.

The sugar and cocoa bean markets are extremely volatile -- making it difficult for experts to predict exactly what will happen in the months to come. Prices may go down -- or they may go up. We all hope, of course, that they will go down.

Retirement facility is successful

WAYNESVILLE — Occupancy of John Knox Village of the Ozarks is proceeding at a steady pace with 85 per cent of the retirement resort's apartments reserved, according to the Rev. John Gillesse, chaplain-administrator of the affordable life-care facility located at the Interstate 44 and Highway 28 interchange.

The interdenominational not-for-profit retirement community was originally planned to include 90 private apartments. Due to the enthusiastic response to affordable life-care in the Ozarks area, however, eight more units have been added.

"Although a great number of the apartments were reserved quickly, a variety of styles are available in the remaining units," says Fred Fox, village manager. "We are offering final completion discounts ranging from $450 to $1,450 on these few remaining apartments."

The affordable life-care concept on which John Knox Village is based is designed to enable persons to maintain independent life styles without the burdens and expense of home ownership. Qualified applicants, who must be 62 (in the case of married couples only one need be) pay an entrance fee based on the size of the apartment they select.

A small monthly service charge provides utilities, weekly laundry, ever-other-week maid service, scheduled free transportation to shopping, entertainment and churches, maintenance of the buildings and grounds as well a a host of othe services and amenities. Inexpensive meals in the dining room are available for residents who do not choose to cook in their private kitchens.

A 30-bed Med-Center, now under construction, is scheduled for completion by he end of the year. The Med-Center will provide skilled nursing care 24 hours a day for residents who require it at no extra lodging or nursing charge, a basic affordable-life-care concept. The emphasis of all professional care given in the Med-Center will be on recovery.

Models of the remaining units may be seen at the Village from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Sturday and 1-6 p.m. Sunday. Reservations for special free dinner tours may be made by calling telephone number 336-3777.

Artist Guild to hold Poplar Bluff exhibit

POPLAR BLUFF—The Poplar Bluff Artists' Guild will hold its 22nd annual art exhibit on Oct. 11 from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Oct. 12 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The exhibit will be in the lobby of the Commerce Bank, sponsor of the event.

Cash prizes will be awarded for first, second and third places in the following classifications: Still life and landscapes in oils, still life and landscapes in acrylics, portraits, and mixed media pastels, water colors, abstracts, graphic arts, and miniatures.

The guild will award $25 for "best in show" and the Commerce Bank will make a purchase award.

Anyone over 16 years of age, living within 100 miles of Poplar Bluff may enter. Entries will be received Oct. 4 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. only in the bank lobby.

Rules for entry may be obtained from Mrs. J.D. Harris, 1409 Rosedale Lane, Poplar Bluff, Missouri 63901, telephone number, 785-5122, or from the Commerce Bank, telephone number, 785-4611.

Household hints

To warm your coffee thermos before taking it to work, pour hot coffee into the bottle, then pour it from the bottle into a coffee cup. Repeat this. Then fill the thermos and seal immediately. Coffee in the cup is just right for drinking and coffee in the thermos keeps warm a long time.

Cane is the original sugar and beet sugar was discovered later. Both can be used in canning and jelly-making.

To make pretzels crisp, spread pretzels on a cookie sheet. Bake at 300 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes until pretzels are recrisped. Do not overbrown.

Lodge to hold meeting Friday

Mrs. Norma Yant, noble grand of the Sikeston Rebekah Lodge No. 533, announces that lodge meetings will begin at 8 p.m. Friday.

All members are urged to be present and bring refreshments.

Household hints

At least partial thawing of larger cuts of meat like roasts may be desirable to shorten the time the cut remains on the barbecue. Frozen steaks, hamburgers, cube steaks and other small cuts can go directly on the grill to be cooked without preliminary thawing. Cooking time for frozen meat is longer than for unfrozen meats of the same kind and size tro allow for thawing. Frozen meat should be cooked 25 to 50 per cent longer.

If you're installing an outdoor lamp, remember an electric light can be turned off easily during the day or when it's not needed, in contrast to continuous-burning outdoor gas lamps.

Ann Landers

Cousin Ruth steals name for baby

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin Ruth has been trying to get pregnant for five years. Last week she and her husband had an opportunity to adopt a baby boy and were thrilled. They decided to name the child Gerald Ford after our President.

My sister Mary is furious. She is seven months pregnant and has the same last name as this cousin. Mary planned to name HER baby Gerald Ford – or Geraldine, if it's a girl. Cousin Ruth stole the idea from Mary and she admits it.

This has created a terrible family fight like you wouldn't believe. Mary says if cousin Ruth doesn't choose another name she will never allow her to set foot in her house again. Who is right? – Bystander

Dear By: You can't get a trademark on a child's name. Your sister should name her child something else, like maybe Nelson – or Nellie if it's a girl.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to warn your readers against putting too much faith in palm readers, fortune tellers and the like. Such confidence inadvertently caused the death of one of my good friends. He was only 30.

Mr. R. was told by a "professional" soothsayer that he would live to be 72 years old. He believed it and lived dangerously. This young man drove a motorcycle without a helmet at frightening speeds, did mountain climbing without the proper equipment, etc.

He was a good swimmer but did some reckless things -- like going out too far in the Pacific Ocean. I warned him a few times but he always said, "I'm going to live to be 72 -- remember?"

Last week he took one chance too many and was drowned in the Pacific.

This 30-year-old, handsome, bright, vital young man left no will because he thought he had another 42 years left.

I hope you will print this letter as a warning to others. – Sad Friend

Dear Friend: He may have been handsome and vital -- but bright he wasn't.

Thank for the warning. I hope my readers who have been similarly "assured" will take heed.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl who wants to know if I'm wrong to feel this way.

My mother wants a complete report every time I go out with a guy. She asks, "Did he kiss you? Did he keep his hands where they belong? Did he ask you to go all the way? Did he talk about any other girls?" And on and on.

When I tell her I think she is nosy she gets mad and says, "You tell your girl friend everything, why not tell me?"

What is your opinion of this, Ann? I trust your advice. – A Daughter

Dear Daughter: some daughters WANT to discuss such details with their mothers. Others do not. Since obviously you do not, I believe your mother shouldn't quiz you.

Confidential to He Wants To But Can He?: -- Not right away. No man can deliver the goods if his heart. is heavier than the load. Be patient and give him time to recover from his troubles.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen-Age Sex – Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelop to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Weddings bells ring

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wunderlich

Byrd-Wunderlich

Miss Elizabeth Anne Byrd and Michael Eugene Wunderlich were united in marriage Aug. 9 at the Miner Baptist Church. The Rev. Lee Fansler of Bertrand officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Byrd sr., 116 Dacus Drive, Sikeston and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wunderlich of Poplar Bluff.

The bride wore a gown of imported polyester chiffon, styled with a tiered bouffant silhouette, billowy bishop sleeves and a mandarin neckline. A slight empire waistline was accented with embroidered English silk net that outlined the bodice, cuffs and a tiered, shirred skirt. A Camelot cap was attached to a cathedral- length, three-tiered veil of imported English silk illusion edged with English lace.

She carried a wicker basket filled with white sweetheart roses and purple status. She also carried a white Bible with a lace cover.

Maid of honor was Cyndi Johnson of Sikeston and bridesmaids were Sherri Owens of Vanduser and Peggy Walls of Matthews.

Best man was Ed Clark of Fredricktown. Groomsmen were Doug Bagby and Robert Wyatt of Poplar Bluff.

Jami Satterfield and Robyn Sitzes were flower girls. Richie Byrd III was ringbearer.

Candlelighters and ushers were Richard Byrd Jr., brother of the bride, and Alan Joe Byrd.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the Security Federal Savings & Loan Association community room.

Mrs. Wunderlich is a 1973 graduate of Scott County Central High School near Morley. She is a junior at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau, majoring in earth science.

Wunderlich is a 1972 graduate of Poplar Bluff High School and will receive a bachelor's degree in physical education from SeMo State University next year.

The couple lives in Cape Girardeau.

Weddings to come

Tidwell-Koch

Pamela Tidwell

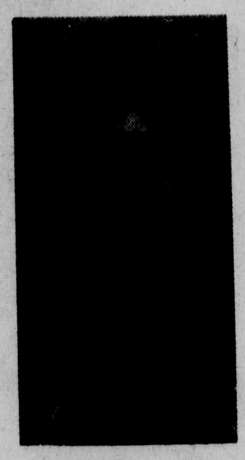
Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Tidwell, 913 Allen Blvd., announce the engagement of their daughter, Pamela Sue to Paul Timothy Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs.. Markus Koch, Route Three.

Miss Tidwell is a 1967 graduate of Sikeston High School and attended Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau. She is a manager for Ashley Outlet Store.

Koch is a 1968 graduate of Matthews High School and received a bachelor's degree in agriculture in 1972 from the University of Missouri - Columbia where he was a member of Alpha Gamma Sigma fraternity. He farms with his father.

No wedding date has been set.

Forbey-Hall



Gwendolyn Forbey

CHARLESTON — Mr. and Mrs. Archie Forbey announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Gwendolyn Jean to John Wade Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Hall.

Miss Forbey is a 1974 graduate of Charleston High School and is employed by First Security State Bank.

Hall, a 1975 graduate of Charleston High School, is employed by the city of Charleston.

A wedding at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Church of the Nazarene is planned.

Getting married?

The Daily Standard, 205 S. New Madrid St., now has new wedding forms available at the front office or at the women's desk. Business hours are from 7 a.m., to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided.

The deadline for weddings is three weeks after date of wedding. Pictures will be returned if a self-addressed, stamped envelope large enough to hold a picture is supplied. Color pictures are discouraged. There is no charge for running a wedding. We are happy to publish it.

Cooking Up

Cake and bananas unite!

By CHERIE BLANTON

My boys tell me it's time to put a little sweetening into the column this month. So here goes some tried and true ones from my own kitchen.

AUNT RUBY'S BANANA CAKE

Bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Cream two sticks butter with two cups sugar. Add four eggs, one at a time.

Add four mashed bananas, juice of one lemon, juice of one orange and one-half cup strawberry preserves.

Sift together and add: 3 cups all-purpose flour, 1 tps. salt, 2 tsp. each of baking soda and cinnamon.

Mix and add two teaspoons vanilla and one-half cup chopped pecans. Pour into a tube pan and bake.

This is an oldie and will repeat it because it is so good.

BANANA SPLIT CAKE

Mix and press down into two-quart pyrex dish: 1 stick melted oleo, ½ cup powdered sugar, 2 cups crushed vanilla wafer crumbs

Second layer: Beat together for five minutes and spread over bottom layer;: 1 stick oleo, 2 cups powdered sugar, 2 egg whites.

Third layer:

Slice three or four bananas lengthwise over second layer; then put one large can drained crushed pineapple over bananas. Cover bananas with pineapple.

Fourth layer:

Cover with one small carton Cool Whip and refrigerate.

This looks like a lot of trouble but it really is not, and if you are a chocolate eclair lover you will go ape.

CREAM PUFF RING

Butter a nine-inch circle on a cookie sheet; drop paste by one-fourth cupfuls just inside circumference of circle to form a ring. Keep dropping in a circle until all paste is used. Bake in preheated 400-degree oven for 40 minutes or til puffed and well browned. Cool on rack and then slice ring crosswise with long sharp knife and lift off.

PASTE

Combine: 1 cup water, ½ cup butter, 1 tsp. sugar, ¼ tsp. salt. Bring to boil in a pan. Add one cup all-purpose flour all at once; then beat with wooden spoon over low heat one minute, or til mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a mixture that does not separate. Remove from heat and beat about two minutes to cool; then add four eggs, one at a time, beating after each until mixture has a satin sheen.

After ring is cooled and cut apart, fill with this mixture you can start making as soon as you take ring from oven.

CHOCOLATE FILLING

Cream one cup butter with one cup sugar. Beat in four squares of unsweetned melted chocolate and two teaspoons of vanilla. Also beat in six eggs, one at a time, and continue to beat until sugar is thoroughly dissolved; then chill. Beat about two minutes after you add each egg.

Put filling in the center; place the top ring on filling; and pour mixture over ring.

GLAZE

Melt two squares semisweet chocolate and two tablespoons butter over low heat, stirring until combined. Sprinkle slivered almonds atop glaze on ring. In the center of the ring; put this cream mixture.

Beat one cup heavy cream and two tablespoons of sugar until stiff, adding cocoa to taste while beating to make the cream chocolate. Refrigerate but let set at room temperature a few minutes before serving.

Clinic scheduled

The Scott County Health Department will hold an immunization clinic from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday in the Scott County Health facility at the Sikeston Activity Center, 201 S. Kingshighway.

Household hints

Check your refrigerator and oven door seals. If you can pull a dollar bill out without resistance, you should replace the seal.

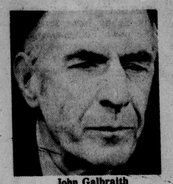
What people are saying...



John Galbraith

"It's outrageous that the metropolitan community has been organized with escape hatches that allow people to enjoy the proximity of the city while not paying their share of the taxes . . . fiscal funkholes are what the suburbs are."

— Economist John K. Galbraith in "Economics and the Public Purpose"

"Physicians have the responsibility to see that doctors are removed from practice where they are not meeting their colleagues' standards. If we don't stand up and take disciplinary action against such individuals, we're subject to criticism that the public rightly throws at us."

— Dr. Malcolm Todd, past president of the American Medical Association.

"You couldn't get me to see that picture for love or money. I've already had enough nightmares without seeing that."

— Harold Schecterle, survivor of a cruiser torpedoed during World War II, on why he doesn't plan to see the movie "Jaws."

"Electronic crime does not involve government agencies. It is a growing epidemic in the general business sector, mainly because much of the electronic equipment needed to do the job is available to anyone and at increasingly lower cost."

— Robert Farr, author of several books on the misuse of modern technology, saying that corporate spying is becoming more common.

"Doors are wide open, ears are receptive, conditions have changed."

— Daniel (Chappie) James, nominated to be America's first black four-star general, on race relations in the armed services.

"It's natural for a kid to be nude on the beach. If you take that innocence away from a child, you crush her."

— Jesica Santos of Seaside Park, N.J., mother of a three-year-old girl charged with indecent exposure for running nude on the beach.

"You feel it's a crime when someone wants to leave Russia. But every American moves seven times. You have a passionate love of country, and you don't think that's peculiar. You think it's natural."

Kruger enrolls at Ole Miss

OXFORD, Miss. — Galen Kruger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Kruger of 401 Malcolm St., Sikeston, Mo., recently participated in a counseling and preregistration conference at the University of Mississippi.

Kruger will enter Ole Miss this fall as a freshman majoring in political science.

The purpose of the series of five-day conferences for high school graduates and transfer students was to give new students a preview of life at Ole Miss.

Professional counselors aided students in selecting courses of study, and students were allowed to preregister for the fall semester.

Students also were given an opportunity to participate in summer campus activities and to meet students, faculty members and university officials.

The Bilderbergers Revisited

By ROBERT M. BARTELL

WASHINGTON, D.C. (Liberty Lobby News Service)— The powerful Bilderbergers, that ultra-secret group of international bankers, politicians et al, have just had another secret meeting.

You probably don't recall reading about last year's furtive get-together at Megeve, France . . . held at a fashionable resort hotel owned by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, the richest man in France.

You don't remember because the press and the wire services sat on news of that meeting . . . news that people had a right to know. However, this year reporters did get near the Bilderberg confab held at the new and luxurious Golden Dolphin Hotel in an out-of-the-way village – Cesme, Turkey.

The list of attendees reads like a Who's Who of international finance.

The three wealthiest men in the world were there. There was David Rockefeller, financial kingpin of the multi-billion dollar Rockefeller fortune. Also there was Baron Edmond de Rothschild, whose family practically invented international banking. And Marcus Wallenberg was there. He's heir of the Swedish family worth billions.

And there were many other influential bankers. One of them was Robert Strange McNamara, head of the World Bank. He doesn't even use his own money for global projects . . . he uses yours, the taxpayer's, in addition to money contributed by taxpayers of other nations.

Of course, not all the participants were super-rich international bankers. Many politicians attended. Among these were Donald Rumsfeld, President Ford's personal representative; Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, Denis Healy; and Margaret Thatcher, head of the Conservative Party in Britain.

Many owners of newspapers and radio stations attended from various countries, including the United States.

As always, the most intriguing thing about a Bilderberg meeting is the security imposed. Turkish soldiers with submachine guns surrounded the hotel and employees were not permitted to leave. Helicopters kept a lookout for intruders and a Turkish cruiser patrolled the sea a few miles offshore. Armed guards stopped cars five miles up the only road leading to the Golden Dolphin.

Even though they were there, reporters were not permitted near the hotel and were lodged some fifty miles away.

Why all this secrecy? What did the Bilderbergers do or talk about to justify this?

One on-the-scene observer put it this way, "In 1971 they planned the devaluation of the dollar, and made billions out of it, while undermining the financial stability of America and the world. Last year, they threw Portugal to the wolves in order to take over her colonies in Africa . . . Angola and Mozambique.

"They are internationalists, and an internationalist has no loyalty to any country . . . he is interested only in profit."

Sikeston entrant wins gold medal

MT. PLEASANT, Mich. — Dorsey Sylvester, 19, of Sikeston, Mo., recently won a gold medal during the 1975 International Special Olympics Games.

The award was earned with a first place finish in the Olympics' softball throw.

More than 3,200 mentally retarded youngsters and young adults from throughout the United States and six foreign countries competed in the Special Olympic games, held Aug. 7-11 at Central Michigan University.

The games were cosponsored by CMU and the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation, founder of Special Olympics, Inc.

Policy discussion planned

DEXTER — Carl Davis, assistant superintendent of Dexter public schools, will discuss plans, policies and procedures for exceptional children attending Dexter schools during a meeting of the Stoddard County Association for Retarded Citizens, scheduled at 7:40 p.m. Sept. 4 at State School No. 27 on West Grant Street.

Pat Keirsey, president of SCARC, announced today that Donna west of Dexter and Love Henderson of Bloomfield have been named co-chairmen of the calendar program for the association.

"The calendar program is one of SCARC's major fund- raising efforts," Mrs. Keirsey said. "This program not only raises money for our unit, but it also gives these creative artists an opportunity to demonstrate their artistic abilities."

The 1976 calendar theme is the Bicentennial, which is illustrated on the cover by a painting of an eagle by Jimmy Keytes of Grants Pass, Ore. Each month is depicted by a drawing created by a mentally retarded individual who submitted his illustration for competition in an annual nationwide contest sponsored by the National Association for Retarded Citizens. The final selections are the published in the NARC calendar.

For more information on this program or information on placing orders, contact Donna West, 801 N. Locust St., Dexter, Mo.63841, telephone number 624-3437, or Love Henderson, Star Route, Bloomfield, Mo. 63825, telephone number 568-2570.

Cutbacks in power unit construction could effect economy of Arkmo area

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — The president of Arkansas-Missouri Power Co., said Sunday that recently announced cutbacks in construction of electric generating units by Middle South Utilities Systems could have an effect on the economy of the area Arkmo serves.

Frank Smith of Blytheville made the remarks in an interview on Jonesboro Television Station KAIT. Arkmo, which is one of the major utilities serving customers in North Arkansas and Southeast Missouri, is a subsidary of Middle South.

Smith said he didn't think the cutbacks would pose a problem within the next couple of years, but they could by 1979 or 1980.

He said the system currently maintains a 16 per cent reserve generating capacity. He said that means that chances of an emergency situation developing, in which Arkmo would have a shortage of power, would be once in every 13 years or 14 years.

With the cutbacks, the 16 per cent reserve is cut down to 12 per cent, meaning the chances of an outage would come once every 3.8 years, according to Smith.

Smith also discussed the increasing rates that utility companies, including Arkmo, are charging. The state Public Service Commission granted Arkmo a $2.2 million rate increase in March.

"We're not wearing the white hats that we are accustomed to," he said. "That is not a position that we covet." But he added, "We are living in an era when the cost of everything is going up and there doesn't seem to be much we can do about it."

Smith said he hopes there will not be the need for another rate increase by Arkmo, but that economic conditions "being what they are, that will not be the case."

The greatest reason for the increased rates is the cost of fuel, he said, and that cost must be passed on to the consumer.

Smith was asked if some exception could be made for people on fixed incomes who least can afford the increased rates. "I have a great deal of empathy for the consumer," Smith replied, but he said Arkmo is not in the position to decide who would pay and would not pay the higher rates.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charles Blanton, Jr.
Daily Sikeston Standard
205 South New Madrid
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Much progress has been made in bringing to the attention of the people of Missouri the need for adequate mental health treatment and care. The Missouri Mental Health Association is the one organization devoting its full time to this effort.

One of our major objectives is adequate treatment for the mentally ill child. A child with mental illness is no longer "an unusual case." One of every ten children in Missouri has an emotional problem requiring psychiatric help! As the numbers of mentally ill children increase, the problem of finding them, treating them, and restoring them grows.

There is an acute shortage of available services for Missouri children who are emotionally disturbed. Missouri has inadequate facilities for treating mentally ill children separately from adults. Our state provides little diagnostic special education for emotionally disturbed children. Our state has no after-care centers to help these children return to the world after they are cured.

The Missouri Association for Mental Health, dependent entirely on private contributions for support, works daily through professional staff and volunteers for the sake of our emotionally disturbed youngsters. We do it through: research for the causes, prevention, and treatment of mental illness: education of both the general public and professional groups about mental illness: service to patients and to the community: and through social action to bring about legislation, financing and adequate facilities for the detection, treatment and rehabilitation of mental patients.

Please do not be indifferent, uncaring about Missouri's emotionally disturbed children. Write your check now to the Missouri Mental Health Association and mail it in the enclosed envelope. Please mail it today.

Sincerely,
John E. Thiel
President

Ginger Ferrell is named to Colonel's 20

FULTON — Ginger Ferrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flaire Ferrell of 819 Moore Ave., Sikekston, has been named to the William Woods College Colonel's 20.

Miss Ferrell is a graduate of Sikeston High School and a returning upperclasswoman at William Woods.

Colonel's 20 is an auxiliary to the Scabbard and Blade at Westminster College for Men and also supports all other Reserve Officers Training Corps units. Among its activities is leading the processional at convocations, sponsoring different charities, holding a blood drive and performing acts of service to the colleges, William Woods and Westminster. One major project is the annual field trip to Ft. Leonard Wood near Waynesville.

The curriculum at William Woods College embraces programs leading to the bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees in 28 major disciplines and the bachelor of fine arts degree in art and theatre arts.

New programs provide for baccalaureate majors in special education, art therapy, paralegal studies, dietetics and other degree programs specially structured for career-oriented opportunities in the Foreign Service. Additional opportunities in law, medical technology, nursing, animal science and engineering are available through cooperative endeavors with other institutions.

Policy discussion planned

DEXTER — Carl Davis, assistant superintendent of Dexter public schools, will discuss plans, policies and procedures for exceptional children attending Dexter schools during a meeting of the Stoddard County Association for Retarded Citizens, scheduled at 7:40 p.m. Sept. 4 at State School No. 27 on West Grant Street.

Pat Keirsey, president of SCARC, announced today that Donna west of Dexter and Love Henderson of Bloomfield have been named co-chairmen of the calendar program for the association.

"The calendar program is one of SCARC's major fund- raising efforts," Mrs. Keirsey said. "This program not only raises money for our unit, but it also gives these creative artists an opportunity to demonstrate their artistic abilities."

The 1976 calendar theme is the Bicentennial, which is illustrated on the cover by a painting of an eagle by Jimmy Keytes of Grants Pass, Ore. Each month is depicted by a drawing created by a mentally retarded individual who submitted his illustration for competition in an annual nationwide contest sponsored by the National Association for Retarded Citizens. The final selections are the published in the NARC calendar.

For more information on this program or information on placing orders, contact Donna West, 801 N. Locust St., Dexter, Mo.63841, telephone number 624-3437, or Love Henderson, Star Route, Bloomfield, Mo. 63825, telephone number 568-2570.

Cutbacks in power unit construction could effect economy of Arkmo area

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — The president of Arkansas-Missouri Power Co., said Sunday that recently announced cutbacks in construction of electric generating units by Middle South Utilities Systems could have an effect on the economy of the area Arkmo serves.

Frank Smith of Blytheville made the remarks in an interview on Jonesboro Television Station KAIT. Arkmo, which is one of the major utilities serving customers in North Arkansas and Southeast Missouri, is a subsidary of Middle South.

Smith said he didn't think the cutbacks would pose a problem within the next couple of years, but they could by 1979 or 1980.

He said the system currently maintains a 16 per cent reserve generating capacity. He said that means that chances of an emergency situation developing, in which Arkmo would have a shortage of power, would be once in every 13 years or 14 years.

With the cutbacks, the 16 per cent reserve is cut down to 12 per cent, meaning the chances of an outage would come once every 3.8 years, according to Smith.

Smith also discussed the increasing rates that utility companies, including Arkmo, are charging. The state Public Service Commission granted Arkmo a $2.2 million rate increase in March.

"We're not wearing the white hats that we are accustomed to," he said. "That is not a position that we covet." But he added, "We are living in an era when the cost of everything is going up and there doesn't seem to be much we can do about it."

Smith said he hopes there will not be the need for another rate increase by Arkmo, but that economic conditions "being what they are, that will not be the case."

The greatest reason for the increased rates is the cost of fuel, he said, and that cost must be passed on to the consumer.

Smith was asked if some exception could be made for people on fixed incomes who least can afford the increased rates. "I have a great deal of empathy for the consumer," Smith replied, but he said Arkmo is not in the position to decide who would pay and would not pay the higher rates.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Charles Blanton, Jr.
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Much progress has been made in bringing to the attention of the people of Missouri the need for adequate mental health treatment and care. The Missouri Mental Health Association is the one organization devoting its full time to this effort.

One of our major objectives is adequate treatment for the mentally ill child. A child with mental illness is no longer "an unusual case." One of every ten children in Missouri has an emotional problem requiring psychiatric help! As the numbers of mentally ill children increase, the problem of finding them, treating them, and restoring them grows.

There is an acute shortage of available services for Missouri children who are emotionally disturbed. Missouri has inadequate facilities for treating mentally ill children separately from adults. Our state provides little diagnostic special education for emotionally disturbed children. Our state has no after-care centers to help these children return to the world after they are cured.

The Missouri Association for Mental Health, dependent entirely on private contributions for support, works daily through professional staff and volunteers for the sake of our emotionally disturbed youngsters. We do it through: research for the causes, prevention, and treatment of mental illness: education of both the general public and professional groups about mental illness: service to patients and to the community: and through social action to bring about legislation, financing and adequate facilities for the detection, treatment and rehabilitation of mental patients.

Please do not be indifferent, uncaring about Missouri's emotionally disturbed children. Write your check now to the Missouri Mental Health Association and mail it in the enclosed envelope. Please mail it today.

Sincerely,
John E. Thiel
President

Ginger Ferrell is named to Colonel's 20

FULTON — Ginger Ferrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flaire Ferrell of 819 Moore Ave., Sikekston, has been named to the William Woods College Colonel's 20.

Miss Ferrell is a graduate of Sikeston High School and a returning upperclasswoman at William Woods.

Colonel's 20 is an auxiliary to the Scabbard and Blade at Westminster College for Men and also supports all other Reserve Officers Training Corps units. Among its activities is leading the processional at convocations, sponsoring different charities, holding a blood drive and performing acts of service to the colleges, William Woods and Westminster. One major project is the annual field trip to Ft. Leonard Wood near Waynesville.

The curriculum at William Woods College embraces programs leading to the bachelor of arts and bachelor of science degrees in 28 major disciplines and the bachelor of fine arts degree in art and theatre arts.

New programs provide for baccalaureate majors in special education, art therapy, paralegal studies, dietetics and other degree programs specially structured for career-oriented opportunities in the Foreign Service. Additional opportunities in law, medical technology, nursing, animal science and engineering are available through cooperative endeavors with other institutions.

Tips for safe driving Labor Day weekend

JEFFERSON CITY — Helpful tips for taking a family auto trip over the upcoming Labor Day weekend in safety have been announced by Col. Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the Missuri State Highway Patrol.

"Whether you are on a long trip or just driving a few miles, the key word is control," Smith stated. "That means control of your car, control of yourself and control of the situation."

The patrol superintendent pointed out the following 'control' tips for motorists over the Labor Day weekend:

1. Control your car's safe driving condition. Before your trip, get a thorough safety check of all vital equipment, including brakes, steering, tires, lights and turn signals. Have any safety defects repaired.

2. Control the distance you drive in one day or one "sitting". Break your trip frequently to stretch your legs, relax your muscles and ret your eyes. Stop for the night before you are worn out.

3. Control the situation. Keep your eyes on the road, your hands on the wheel and your mind on your driving. Anticipate the mistakes of other drivers and be ready to take preventive measures to avoid an accident.

"Nineteen persons were killed in Missouri traffic accidents over the last Labor Day weekend," Smith continued.

Fund raising canvass planned for Sept. 2-6

DEXTER — Residents of Dexter and Bell City are reminded that the house-to-house fund-raising campaign for the Stoddard County Association for Retarded Citizens will take place Sept. 2-6, Pat Kiersey, president of the association, announced today.

Captains for the Dexter area are Emma Lou Adams, Marjean Mayer, Marilyn Brehmer, Shelba Mofield, Nadine Boone, Pat Robbins, Shirley Hughes, Lynn Wiggs, Joanne Aarant, Sue Parsons, Karen Beaver, Julie Minton, Debbie Richman, Cherry Booth, Norma James and Priscilla Shell.

Captains for the Bell City area are Sara Knoder and J. C. Pullam Jr.

Transportation plan adopted by Oran school

ORAN — The Oran R-3 School District Board of Education adopted a plan Thursday for transporting of students from Oran to the Sikeston Vocational and Trade School.

Under the plan, the district-owned school bus driven by Mrs. Mary Ann Curtis will transport approximately 20 first-year students, while the approximately 14 second-year students will be transported by the contract operators, with the runs to alternate between five buses.

The problem developed because three trips a day between Oran and Sikeston would be necessary for the district-owned bus because of the separate schedules for first and second-year students.

By using the contracted buses, the students can be handled in two trips at approximately the same cost.

The board also authorized Continental Boiler Co. Inc. of St. Louis to repair the furnace boilers in both the high school and elementary school buildings.

DAEOC sponsors trip

Forty-two Scott County youths enjoyed a trip to Six Flags over Mid-America on Aug. 13 The children were selected from low income families in the Scott County area and the trip was made possible through a one-day Summer Recreation Program sponsored by the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation (DAEOC).

The youths and seven supervisors, consisting of the Sikeston DAEOC Staff and adult volunteers from the Community traveled on a Greyhound Bus Line to Six Flags. The children enjoyed this very much. They sang songs and laughed the entire time.

The tickets, bus fare and food for the children were provided by the DAEOC Corporation.

The day was a big success although there was a light rain throughout the day. This did not dampen the enthusiasm of the group. They enjoyed everything about the trip. They had plenty to eat and drink and enjoyed everything available for them.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Reggie Smith was in a state of near collapse but not so the St. Louis Cardinals.

And because of Smith's last gasp efforts, Cardinal hopes are soaring instead of fluttering in baseball's National League East.

"It looked like everyone had given up on the game," said Smith, who salvaged one of two St. Louis victories from almost certain defeat with his bat in a Tuesday night doubleheader.

"When we tied the score I said there's no way we're going to lose," he recalled after contributing three hits and keying a Cards comeback to a 10-9 win.

"These are the kind of games that get you going and make you feel like you're going to win," Smith noted after the Cards also won the nightcap 2-1 to complete their sweep of the Houston Astros.

Smith's bat was silent as the Cards fell behind 8-1 in the seventh inning of the opener, a makeup from Monday night's rain-erased action.

But Smith swung into action following a six-run St. Louis rally to an 8-7 deficit and first dropped a double into left field that helped the Cards tie at 9-9.

Later he singled in the 10th only to be thrown out at home plate on Ron Fairly's two-base hit and in the 12th, after St. Louis reliever Al Hrabosky repulsed two Astros threats, he applied the coup de grace.

Bake McBride opened with a single and advanced to second on a sacrifice. Ted Simmons was purposedly walked to set up a force play, but Smith foiled the strategy by smacking Jose Sosa's second delivery into center field for the winning hit.

"I was just tired," explained Smith, who staggered to the dugout amid ecstatic teammates following his first game blow and sat out the nightcap.

"I couldn't breath," he added. "Since I've had a little bout with the flu I've had a problem catching my breath. It may be the humidity. I was hyper-ventilating."

While Smith rested in the second game, rookie right-hander Harry Rasmussen, 3-2, worked hard from start to finish and fashioned a five-hitter.

The two victories boosted the Cards into second place in the NL East, leavin them three games behind Pittsburgh.

"We had to reach into our little repertoire" commented Fairly, whose seventh home run ignited St. Louis in the second game. "We hadn't been in a game like the first one all year."

Taylor heads Sr's

Since its humble beginnings not too long ago, the Sikeston Senior Babe Ruth baseball program for 16-18 year olds has made a great deal of progress, rising from a skipshod circuit in which money and uniforms were scarce to a well-equipped league which was able to host the sectional tournament only weeks ago. Much of the progress has been made during the past year, and although he is reluctant to admit it, Commissioner Bob Taylor deserves a lot of the credit.

Taylor was elected Commissioner at a meeting of concerned people last August. It was decided that the league needed reorganization, so an executive committee was set up as the governing body of the organization. This committee consists of assistant commissioner Raymond Leible, treasurer Don Agnew, secretary Jack Lasater and league managers Bennie Hesselrode, Jim Saulter, Gerald Griffin and Don Miller.

"Originally, we had in mind the complete reorganizing of all the Senior Babe Ruth League programs in this part of the state," said Taylor, who, like the other volunteers in Sikeston's summer baseball program, receives no pay for his time and labor. "We didn't get to do it this year, but we're hoping for it soon."

The program that Taylor talked about would create a SEMO Senior Babe Ruth League franchise, rather than the various individual leagues which are registered with the main Babe Ruth office separately. Sikeston's four individual teams would still play, but a traveling team from Sikeston would also be picked to play a league schedule against hte other towns. At the end of the season, a league all-star team would be selected to compete in the state tournament. "This is essentially what Sugar Creek does," commented Taylor, he added that such a squad of area standouts could probably beat the defending national champs.

Taylor is humble about his role in the Sikeston SBRL hard-working volunteers is essential to the success of any baseball league, a take-charge individual must be at the helm to make thing go. The commissioner's job starts well before the season begins with the recruiting of volunteers to manage and coach the four league teams. Schedules have to be prepared (a job that can drive even a good math mind crazy, in case you've never tried it) and umpires have to be hired to officiate at the ballgames. "We tried something differen this season by hiring former Senior Babe Ruth players to umpire this season," said Taylor. "Those young men did as fine a job as anyone has done yet."

program. "My toughest job is probably finding responsible people to take charge of the different jobs within the league." As an example, he cited the hard work of men such as Raymond Leible, who probably yielded more than a few drops of sweat this summer as he worked to keep the field at VFW Stadium in playable condition.

But although a good supply of possibility of hosting the Tournament of Champions. While he won't rule out the possibility of such a tournament here, Taylor says that he doesn't think it is a realistic idea at the present time. "To put on the Tournament of Champions here, it would take a $20,000 bid plus probably another $10,000 or so in other expenses." Taylor pointed out that this year's tournament, as successful as it was, made only a little bit more than the $3500 it cost to run the tournament. "We'd have to come up with a lot more money to be able to pull it off," he said.

More important than trying to host a Tournament of Champions, says Taylor, should be the idea of getting more and more boys involved in the local program. "I'd like to see six, maybe eight teams in the league soon," envisioned Taylor, who said there are a lot of boys dropping out of baseball after their final season in the Junior Babe Ruth League. "We'd like to get these boys out here on the ball diamond where they belong."

Come to think of it, that's what Babe Ruth Baseball is all about.

Another change made this season was the hiring of professionals to operate the concession stand. A & W Root Beer was allowed to sell the refreshments at the ballpark this season, relieving a host of mothers of that thankless job.

With the success of this year's Midwest Plains Sectional Tournament, many persons associated with baseball in Sikeston are examining the

Taylor heads Sr's

Since its humble beginnings not too long ago, the Sikeston Senior Babe Ruth baseball program for 16-18 year olds has made a great deal of progress, rising from a skipshod circuit in which money and uniforms were scarce to a well-equipped league which was able to host the sectional tournament only weeks ago. Much of the progress has been made during the past year, and although he is reluctant to admit it, Commissioner Bob Taylor deserves a lot of the credit.

Taylor was elected Commissioner at a meeting of concerned people last August. It was decided that the league needed reorganization, so an executive committee was set up as the governing body of the organization. This committee consists of assistant commissioner Raymond Leible, treasurer Don Agnew, secretary Jack Lasater and league managers Bennie Hesselrode, Jim Saulter, Gerald Griffin and Don Miller.

"Originally, we had in mind the complete reorganizing of all the Senior Babe Ruth League programs in this part of the state," said Taylor, who, like the other volunteers in Sikeston's summer baseball program, receives no pay for his time and labor. "We didn't get to do it this year, but we're hoping for it soon."

The program that Taylor talked about would create a SEMO Senior Babe Ruth League franchise, rather than the various individual leagues which are registered with the main Babe Ruth office separately. Sikeston's four individual teams would still play, but a traveling team from Sikeston would also be picked to play a league schedule against hte other towns. At the end of the season, a league all-star team would be selected to compete in the state tournament. "This is essentially what Sugar Creek does," commented Taylor, he added that such a squad of area standouts could probably beat the defending national champs.

Taylor is humble about his role in the Sikeston SBRL hard-working volunteers is essential to the success of any baseball league, a take-charge individual must be at the helm to make thing go. The commissioner's job starts well before the season begins with the recruiting of volunteers to manage and coach the four league teams. Schedules have to be prepared (a job that can drive even a good math mind crazy, in case you've never tried it) and umpires have to be hired to officiate at the ballgames. "We tried something differen this season by hiring former Senior Babe Ruth players to umpire this season," said Taylor. "Those young men did as fine a job as anyone has done yet."

program. "My toughest job is probably finding responsible people to take charge of the different jobs within the league." As an example, he cited the hard work of men such as Raymond Leible, who probably yielded more than a few drops of sweat this summer as he worked to keep the field at VFW Stadium in playable condition.

But although a good supply of possibility of hosting the Tournament of Champions. While he won't rule out the possibility of such a tournament here, Taylor says that he doesn't think it is a realistic idea at the present time. "To put on the Tournament of Champions here, it would take a $20,000 bid plus probably another $10,000 or so in other expenses." Taylor pointed out that this year's tournament, as successful as it was, made only a little bit more than the $3500 it cost to run the tournament. "We'd have to come up with a lot more money to be able to pull it off," he said.

More important than trying to host a Tournament of Champions, says Taylor, should be the idea of getting more and more boys involved in the local program. "I'd like to see six, maybe eight teams in the league soon," envisioned Taylor, who said there are a lot of boys dropping out of baseball after their final season in the Junior Babe Ruth League. "We'd like to get these boys out here on the ball diamond where they belong."

Come to think of it, that's what Babe Ruth Baseball is all about.

Another change made this season was the hiring of professionals to operate the concession stand. A & W Root Beer was allowed to sell the refreshments at the ballpark this season, relieving a host of mothers of that thankless job.

With the success of this year's Midwest Plains Sectional Tournament, many persons associated with baseball in Sikeston are examining the

Largent, Cowell, Marks

Largent claims 1st

Black Bass are supposed to have cycles through their lives that cause them to react in a particular manner, but the twenty-two fishermen of the Bootheel Busters of Sikeston are still wondering why they react different at the Barkley Lake located in Kentucky.

Normally in the summer months bass hold in deep water especially during midday and feed at night, but not at Barkley.

Jim Largent, the first place money winner, found his winning 12 lbs. 6 oz. in secondary coves near fallen trees in 5 to 7 feet waters in the hot mid-day Sunday. The fish were caught on white spinner baits fished 12 inches under the surface.

Sonny Cowell, Club President, finished second in the eleven hour tournament with 11 lbs. 6 oz. Lee Marks finished third with a total of 7 lbs. and large fish honors with his 6 lb. fish caught on a buzzing spinner bait at the back of a cove.

Bass tournaments over the past three years have drawn a lot of attention and some criticism, most unjustified. Twenty-two of the areas best bass fishermen fished eleven hours with an average of 2.14 fish and an average weight of 3.45 pounds. Thirty-seven of forty-seven fish caught were returned to the lake alive and in good condition.

These statistics help prove that tournaments do not lower fish populations as reported by some novices.

The 1975 tournament schedule draws close to an end with two tournaments remaining to determine the areas top bass fisherman who will compete at the State Tournament.

LET'S HELP THE FARMERS

It's time for sportsmen to stand up and be counted.

Nearly every one of America's hunters and fishermen have, at one time or another, hunted or fished on some farm, ranch or private landowner's land.

Treat the landowner right, ask permission to hunt or fish, and it's usually granted.

Now the landowners, farmers and ranchers need your help.

The Corps of Engineers is seeking to regulate every puddle of water in the nation, even tiny farm ponds.

Virgil Ward

Under the proposed regulations, the Corps would have authority over every coastal and inland body of water in the nation, including wetlands. The Corps would have the power to regulate dredging and filling operations and it would require farmers to obtain federal permits before beginning plowing or land leveling operations. This could result in economic disaster and chaos. Most people are familiar with delays which result from regulations forced on us by the federal government.

American farmers are extremely independent. They are also the most efficient food producers in the world. Saddle them with a host of rules and regulations and you will see this nation's food supply dwindle.

If some of these federal bureaucrats have their way, there may be no more private ownership of land. If this happens, we will end up like the Russians who seek to control every farm and every farmer and usually end up by having to look to the United States for food.

Let's all write to our congressmen and to Chief of Engineers, Lt. Gen. W. C. Gribble, Jr. and protest this attempted rip-off of our rights and privileges guaranteed by the Constitution. You could end up by having to have a permit from the Corps to flush the stool in your bathroom.

Good luck with your fishing.

Virgil Ward

Dear Mr. Dierdorf:

Enclosed is a check for a year's subscription to your newsletter Big Red Line.

I have been following football for more than half my life from Otto Graham in the 50's in Cleveland; to the Eagles and Norm Van Brocklin & Chuck Bednarik in the great 1960 Championship over the Packers; to the Lions and Alex Karras & Lem Barney; to the Cardinals for the last five years.

It has been fun watching the Big Red improve, and finally bring a championship to St. Louis. I wrote a little poem you might like to use.

We're the Football Cardinals
The surprising team last year
We put it all together
Now everyone can cheer.
Our offense had the Big scores
Our defense had them too
That's why we're called the Big Red
We're big on plays for you.
We're the Football Cardinals
The underdogs last year
But we sure showed them
We're something else to fear.
We have a special slogan
The Stand Up Gang's. our name
We'll stand and cheer forever
And bring our team to fame.

Good luck in your new venture and hope the Cardinals—"Show more drive in '75" and bring us another championship and this time the Super Bowl, too.

Sincerely,
Joanne DiCarlo, St. Charles, Mo.

BIG 8 FOOTBALL

Coach Barry Switzer of Oklahoma promised his defending national football champions "will have more speed and more long range hitting ability than in the past."

Switzer and the other Big Eight Conference coaches were in Kansas City for the conference football kickoff luncheon.

"We have the best offensive talent since I've been at Oklahoma," said Switzer, whose team ends a two-year probation for recruiting violations Wednesday. "Joe Washington is the greatest running back I've ever seen.

"Hand the ball to him 20 or 25 times in a game and you have a chance to win."

As usual, all of the coaches predicted their teams would be good ones.

New Coach Bud Moore of Kansas said with tongue in cheeck:

"We're going to win the national championship."

Moore said the Jayhawks would have a good defensive line and that the secondary "will be one of our strongest points. We're concerned about who our quarterback will be, and lack of depth is a problem."

Moore said Kansas has six or seven football players "who are as good as any in the country."

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said at present, Terry Luck is the Huskers' quarter-back. Luck, a reserve last year, went into the Sugar Bowl game with Florida last season and guided the Huskers to a 13-10 victory.

"Quarterback and possibly our offensive line are our main concern," said Osborne. "We're not settled on our quarterback. We have enough good athletes to have a good football team."

Al Onofrio of Missouri predicted the Tigers would have their best offense in a long while.

"One of the reasons is Tony Galbreath," Onofrio said. "We'll have the biggest offensive line we've ever had. It will average 240 pounds."

"We'll have more ability to move the football," said Jim Stanley of Oklahoma State. "Our offense appears better than the last two years. We are concerned about the defensive backfield, and our defensive ends have a long way to go."

Bill Mallory of Colorado said he is concerned about the Buffs' interior on defense. He added Colorado's offense "should be pretty darn good. Our defense should be better than last year. We'll be a better football team. . . "

Ellis Rainsberger of Kansas State asserted defense "probably will have to be our strength. I think we'll have an adequate offense, and the defense won't have to stay on the field all of the time.

"It's too premature for me to predict how we'll do in wins and losses."

Rainsberger is in his first season as head coach of the Wildcats.

Coach Erle Bruce said Iowa State should be improved particularly since the Cyclones will be playing in a new 50,000-seat stadium.

"In Iowa," said Bruce, "we do things big or we don't do them at all."

UMPIRES ROLE

In the view held by many with long experience in Little League, the Umpire by virtue of his ability to provide leadership, can be one of the most important adults in the program. In the century of progress, baseball has given dignity and respect to the role of the umpire. He represents authority on the field of play. His is the final word, the absolute decision. A good umpire knows the rules and has the ability to apply them in action and split-second judgment.

Finding men in the league community who are inclined to accept the responsibility of umpiring is not easily accomplished. Contrarily, there are men in every community who will come forward to help, if they are invited to do so and their status as volunteer workers with a volunteer program is accepted.

It is a falacy to assume that payment of fees to men who umprie is a guarantee of competency. All other adult service is of volunteer nature and there is no valid reason to reimburse an umpire for a parallel service. Importantly, such fees impose a financial strain on the league's budget and often thereafter, its financial stability. It is an unequitable burden that c annot be justified. A league that persists in pursuing a policy of making payment for umpire service is not respecting the policies of the program.

To encourage and stimulate the volunteer status of umpires, Little League Headquarters maintains the services of an Umpire Consultant, publishes manuals and other literature calculated to assist in the training of qualified umpires.

Excellent progress has been made in strengthening the position of the volunteer umpire through the District Administrators Organization Plan. Attendance at the Umpire School in Williamsport by District Umpire Consultants and Umpires-in-Chief of local leagues has been highly beneficial. More than 400 districts now operate the Umpire Consultant Plan.

One of the most important phases of the training program is the Umpire School established in 1963.

"Hand the ball to him 20 or 25 times in a game and you have a chance to win."

As usual, all of the coaches predicted their teams would be good ones.

New Coach Bud Moore of Kansas said with tongue in cheeck:

"We're going to win the national championship."

Moore said the Jayhawks would have a good defensive line and that the secondary "will be one of our strongest points. We're concerned about who our quarterback will be, and lack of depth is a problem."

Moore said Kansas has six or seven football players "who are as good as any in the country."

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne said at present, Terry Luck is the Huskers' quarter-back. Luck, a reserve last year, went into the Sugar Bowl game with Florida last season and guided the Huskers to a 13-10 victory.

"Quarterback and possibly our offensive line are our main concern," said Osborne. "We're not settled on our quarterback. We have enough good athletes to have a good football team."

Al Onofrio of Missouri predicted the Tigers would have their best offense in a long while.

"One of the reasons is Tony Galbreath," Onofrio said. "We'll have the biggest offensive line we've ever had. It will average 240 pounds."

"We'll have more ability to move the football," said Jim Stanley of Oklahoma State. "Our offense appears better than the last two years. We are concerned about the defensive backfield, and our defensive ends have a long way to go."

Bill Mallory of Colorado said he is concerned about the Buffs' interior on defense. He added Colorado's offense "should be pretty darn good. Our defense should be better than last year. We'll be a better football team. . . "

Ellis Rainsberger of Kansas State asserted defense "probably will have to be our strength. I think we'll have an adequate offense, and the defense won't have to stay on the field all of the time.

"It's too premature for me to predict how we'll do in wins and losses."

Rainsberger is in his first season as head coach of the Wildcats.

Coach Erle Bruce said Iowa State should be improved particularly since the Cyclones will be playing in a new 50,000-seat stadium.

"In Iowa," said Bruce, "we do things big or we don't do them at all."

UMPIRES ROLE

In the view held by many with long experience in Little League, the Umpire by virtue of his ability to provide leadership, can be one of the most important adults in the program. In the century of progress, baseball has given dignity and respect to the role of the umpire. He represents authority on the field of play. His is the final word, the absolute decision. A good umpire knows the rules and has the ability to apply them in action and split-second judgment.

Finding men in the league community who are inclined to accept the responsibility of umpiring is not easily accomplished. Contrarily, there are men in every community who will come forward to help, if they are invited to do so and their status as volunteer workers with a volunteer program is accepted.

It is a falacy to assume that payment of fees to men who umprie is a guarantee of competency. All other adult service is of volunteer nature and there is no valid reason to reimburse an umpire for a parallel service. Importantly, such fees impose a financial strain on the league's budget and often thereafter, its financial stability. It is an unequitable burden that c annot be justified. A league that persists in pursuing a policy of making payment for umpire service is not respecting the policies of the program.

To encourage and stimulate the volunteer status of umpires, Little League Headquarters maintains the services of an Umpire Consultant, publishes manuals and other literature calculated to assist in the training of qualified umpires.

Excellent progress has been made in strengthening the position of the volunteer umpire through the District Administrators Organization Plan. Attendance at the Umpire School in Williamsport by District Umpire Consultants and Umpires-in-Chief of local leagues has been highly beneficial. More than 400 districts now operate the Umpire Consultant Plan.

One of the most important phases of the training program is the Umpire School established in 1963.

VOTE FOR CHARLEY NEAL

FOR A

FULL TIME MAYOR

Morehouse, Mo.

Special Election Sept. 2, 1975

I will look into and support the projects listed below:

I. New Water Plant-By getting a grant and not using the Revenue Sharing Money.
II. Drainage for all of the town.
III. New Police Station-By getting help from the State and Federal Government.
IV. City to maintain the black top streets.
V. To let the citizens know what is being done with the Revenue Sharing Money.
VI. To lower trash pickup fee from $2.50 per month to $2.00 or to revise the system and charge so much per bag.

With 3½ million dollars going out to the Eastern Half of the State of Mo. in the first half of 1975. I believe we would have been eligible for some of it, on water drainage or housing or sewage, but they will not give it unless you ask.

Your vote will be appreciated

Charley L. Neal

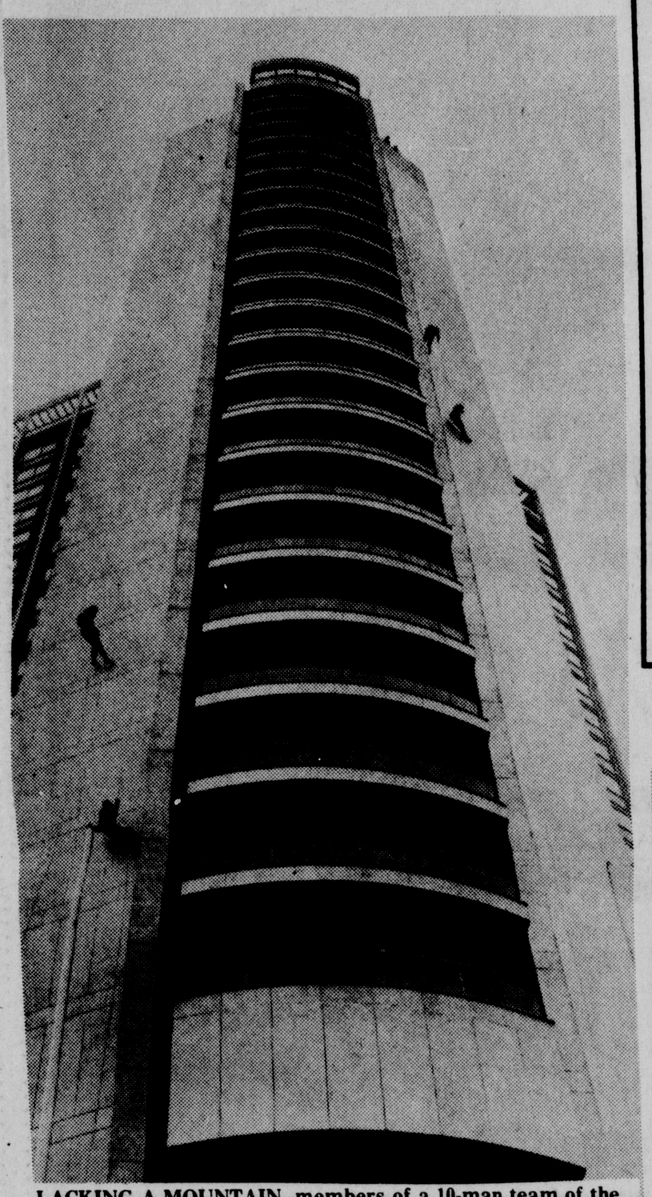
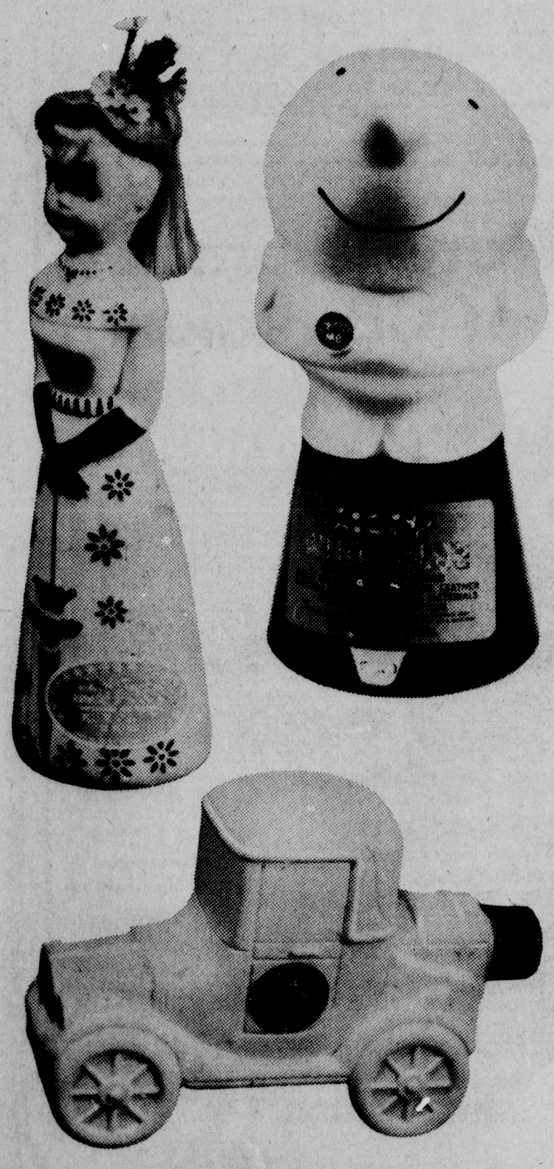
NOT YOUR run-of-the-mill commandment greets worshippers at this church in Quincy, Mass. where illegal parking can jeopardize one's mortal soul.



LACKING A MOUNTAIN, members of a 10-man team of the 45 Commando Royal Marines warm up before breakfast by using ropes to descend from the roof of the London Hilton Hotel. The 328-foot maneuver was just a tuneup for a royal tournament in London.



These packagings are winners of the plastic industry's equivalent of Oscar and Emmy. Cited in the annual awards of The Plastic Bottle Institute, the gleeful glue fellow (top right), fashionable bath oil doll (left) and high-powered bubble bath vehicle have the added advantages of use later as children's toys. Institute awards are made in several container marketing categories on the basis of functionality, innovation and esthetics.

THE GREAT LIFE

This is how you and your family will feel after starting a sales carrier with us.
What makes it great?

Your pay day, first of all. You can expect average earnings of $250 to $300 per week, more if you are above average. You will have a guaranteed income during your intensive training program. Next you will have the prestige of working for a 44 year old company that has an outstanding reputation for service. Benefits for you and your family are tops, such as free hospitalization insurance for the entire family. You will contact both established accounts and prospective accounts that have contacted us.

If you are interested in one of the better sales opportunities in the state with unlimited income and advancement opportunities, contact

Haile Selassie dies

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Haile Selassie, the diminutive strong man who ruled Ethiopia for more than half a century before he was deposed by the military last September, died today. He was 83.

The government said the former monarch was found dead in his bed by a servant early this morning.

Addis Ababa radio said Selassie died as a result of illness affecting his prostate gland. Last May, Selassie was reported seriously ill with a prostate condition.

Born Prince Tafari Makonnen on July 23, 1892, Selassie was not in the direct line for the throne. He was chosen regent and heir to share rule with his cousin, Queen Zauditu, after Emperor Lij Yasu was deposed in 1916.

Gradually, Tafari gained the upper hand and had himself proclaimed king in 1928 and emperor in 1930 after Queen Zauditu's death.

Since he was deposed last Sept. 12 Selassie had been confined in one of his former palaces in the Ethiopian capital, and access to him had been denied to outsiders.

Medical reports following his operation said he was mak ng a normal recovery. But then there was no further word on his condition.

Today's broadcast said that following a deterioration Tuesday, Selassie's only surviving daughter, Princess Tenagne-Work, had been permitted to visit him.

But there was apparently no fear his death was imminent, and the former absolute monarch of 27 million people died alone.

Taking the throne in 1928 when he was 36, he ruled for 41 of the next 46 years.

Mussolini's invading army drove him into exile in 1936. The British army brought him back to his throne in 1941 and he kept it until a slow-motion military coup culminated in his arrest last Sept. 12.

The bearded little old man was held in an apartment at the Grand Palace, his former stronghold on a hilltop overlooking Addis Ababa and now the headquarters of the military regime that overthrew him.

Last February he was reported in good health but subject to periods of mental confusion when he seemed to believe he was still on the throne.

In March, the leftist military government abolished the 3,000-year-old monarchy.

On May 23 the official Ethiopian radio announced that Haile Selassie was seriously ill and might need prostate surgery. That was the last word of him until the announcement today of his death.

Known as the Conquering Lion of Judah, Elect of God and King of Kings, the emperor began his long reign as a reformer. He built schools, roads and hospitals in a land where public hangings and slavery had been common and where landlords kept private armies.

But age and tradition prevented the emperor from keeping pace with Ethiopia's intellectuals and technocrats. The country, whose proudest boast was that it never had been colonized, stayed behind when newly independent Africa began modernizing itself in the 1960s.

Ironically, Selassie himself ordered the changes that eventually led to his downfall — the military training programs that exposed Ethiopian officers to democracy in the United States, and Haile Selassie University, where students learned to think in revolutionary terms.

Drought had taken more than 100,000 lives in Ethiopia by February 1974, when the armed forces mutinied for pay raises and then began nibbling away at the emperor's power and public support.

Though slightly built and barely 5 feet 2, the descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, was an iron man who always used stern methods to suppress his enemies. Lij Yasu, the emperor from whom he seized the throne in 1928, was kept in chains for 19 years until he died.

Selassie was born Prince Tafari Makonnen on July 23, 1892, a member of the Ethiopian royal family but not in the direct line of succession to the throne. With the support of tribal barons he had himself proclaimed king in 1928 when there was friction between opposing factions of the royal family.

thinks it will. As the rates go up, many will decrease usage."

The Bernie City Council recently went on record in protest to the proposed increase, as did the Dexter City Council.

The position of many people at the hearing was stated when Thelma Christmas of Dexter said, "We are poor elderly people. Elderly people should be treated better than they are. We won't be able to pay the bills unless something changes."

The hearing was one of a number of meetings scheduled by the Public Service Commission to determine whether the requested rate increases should be allowed. Another wa held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Columbia and one is scheduled Sept. 15 in Jefferson City.

Robert Pierce, chairman of the PSC, conducted Tuesday's hearing. Before the hearing started, he told the crowd that the PSC reviews a company's expenses for the last 12 - month period, and if rates charged don't bring in enough money to meet operating expenses, a rate increase will be granted.

He also pointed out that Missouri Utilities does not generate power but purchases it from Union Electric Co.., which recently raised its rates. the PSC has no control over Union Electric, Pierce said, or what that firm charges for electricity.

Low income housing funds allocated

KANSAS CITY—William R. Moore, executive director of the Missouri Housing Development Commission, has announced that the commission has received set aside funds totaling $4.5 million, which represents a potential of approximately 1,500 units of low income housing for the state.

Moore stated that the allocation of the money statewide is based upon the fair share plan which is derived from data indicating the need for standard housing, taking into consideration six basic factors: population, poverty, housing overcrowding, housing vacancies, housing conditions and rent to income ratio.

Moore further stated that the commission has started accepting preliminary proposals for projects in the southeast portion of the state which includes the Meramec, Southeast Missouri, Scouth Central Ozark, Ozark Foothills and Bootheel Regional Planning Commissions.

The proposals must qualify under Federal Housing Authority insurance programs 221(d) or 221(d)4 as well as Section 8.

Anyone interested in submitting a proposal should contact the Missouri Housing Development Commission at 20 W. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64105, telephone number 816-421-1045.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

"O men of Israel, listen! God publicly endorses Jesus of Nazareth by doing tremendous miracles through him, as you well know. But God, following his prearranged plan, let you use the Roman government to nail him to the cross and murder him. Then God released him from the horrors of death and brought him back to life again, for death could not keep this man within its grip.

Malden council sets salaries

MALDEN---Problems involving city streets, a proposed trailer park, city dump and salaries of city employes were handled by the City Council Monday night.

Mrs. Burtie Ward and Mrs. Norman Hinz complained to the council that a railroad crossing on Highway 25 was too rough, water stood on the highway near Olive Street, many yards were not kept up and light bills were too high.

City Clerk Roscoe Thornton said the council discussed the problems with the women but took no action on the matters.

A council meeting was set at 7 p.m. Friday at the city hall to discuss a proposed trailer park to be built in the industrial park.

The meeting was set after J.C. Forbes presented plans for the proposed park and asked to get together with the council to discuss the situation and possibly draw up a contract.

The meeting will be open to the public.

The council decided to station a city employe at the city dump. The employe will be at the dump for 90 days, beginning next week, and will show people where to dump refuse.

Thornton said dumping hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Wednesday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The dump is closed on other days.

Louis Beck, an employe of the city street department, presented a petition to the council asking it to consider a 10 cent raise for employes.

The council agreed to meet with employes at 7 p.m. Sept. 2 for discussion on the matter.

The council decided to award insurance on all city buildings on a competitive bid basis. Thornton said that any company interested in submitting a bid should do so by Oct. 13.

The salary of the city clerk was increased from $606 to $700 per month, retroactive to July, and pay for firemen was set at $5 per call. Previously, firemen were paid $2.50 per call for a small fire, $3 for a larger fire and $5 for even larger fire.

The fire department fee to answer an out-of-town fire call was raised from $25 to $50.

A yard sale ordinance was also passed, limiting the number of yard sales any family can have to two per year. Thornton said some families have been having a continuous sale, and since the city could not license a yard sale by law, the families were running a business without having to buy a merchant's license.

The council also decided to gravel four blocks of Garland Street.

Bingham art work to tour 7 cities

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A seven city tour and exhibition of the works of Missouri 19th Century artist George Caleb Bingham will begin next month, according to Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The exhibition, which will open Sept. 26 at the Nelson Gallery in Kansas City, will include 25 paintings and portraits by Bingham as well as the 112 drawings, which will be purchased from the Mercantile LVI-brary Association in St. Louis.

Bond signed the final agreement for acquisition of the drawings last week, culminating a year of negotiations to keep the collection in Missouri.

Those negotiations came after a speical citizens committee, Bingham Sketches, Inc., was formed by the governor following reports that the privately supported library was planning to sell the collection to individuals.

There will be a $1 admission to the exhibition with the proceeds going toward the $1.8 million purchase price for the collection os pen and ink sketches. The citizens committee must raise $1.2 million of that agreed to price by March 31.

The exhibition will run through Oct. 26 at the Nelson Gallery with the remaining six stops Nov. 14-Jan. 4 at the St. Louis Art Museum, Jan. 11-Jan. 21 at the Springfield Art Museum, Jan. 31-Feb. 7 at the Kent Library in Cape Girardeau, Feb. 13-March 7 at the Museum of art And Archaeology and State Historicial Sociatey of Missouri in Columbia, March 1-March 7 at the Mark Twain Museum in Hannibal and April 1-April 11 at the Albrecht Gallery and Museum of Art in St. Joseph.

A spokesman for the governor said the full exhibition will be on display in both St. Louis and Kansas City and then only portions of it will be shown at the other five galleries around the state.

Bingham was born in Virginia but moved to Missouri early in his childhood. He served in the state legislature from Saline County, as state treasurer, adjutant general and as the first president of the Kansas City Police Board.

She was born Nov. 20, 1884 in Vineland to the late John and Panthea Tuttle.

In 1909, she married Elmer M. Stites, who died Dec. 10, 1916.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. C. B. Bell of Silver Springs, Md.; two grandchildren, Dale Stites of Dexter and Lynette Mueller of Austin, Tex.; and seven great- grandchildren.

The body was taken this afternoon from Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter to Heilithe Funeral Home in Imperial, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Burial will be in Ruschenbach Cemetery at Imperial.

School board hires teachers for Richland

ESSEX — Teachers and aides were hired by Richland School District Board of Education Tuesday night, and a roofing contract was awarded.

Supt. Jim Lawrence said the board hired Mrs. Janice McCane of Dexter as a remedial language arts teacher, Mrs. Joan Beard of Dexter as her aide, Mrs. Ellen Persfull of Bloomfield as a remedial mathematics teacher and Robert Jones of Sikeston as her aide.

Pyramid Roofing Co. of Sikekston was awarded a contract for work on expansion joints on the high school roof.

The work will cost $1,420, Lawrence said.

Service station is broken into

GRAY RIDGE---Rankin's Service Station was broken into sometime Tuesday night and several small items were stolen the Stoddard County Sheriff's Department reported today.

Soft drinks, pennies, a portable radio, cigarettes, peanuts and snack cakes were reported stolen.

The building apparently was entered through a window on the east side.

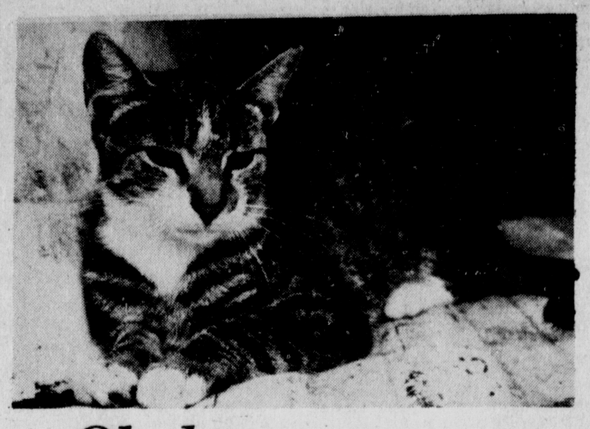
DEXTER — A tape player and one tape was reported stolen sometime Monday night from a car owned by Mike Hutchcraft, 1122 N. Mulberry St.

Hutchcraft said someone broke into the locked car while it was parked in the driveway of his home.



Oh, lonesome me

One of two kittens available for adoption this week at the city pound rests forlornly in humane officer Bob Beardsley's truck. Anyone wanting to adopt either kitten may contact Beardsley at the Sikeston police station.

Haile Selassie dies

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Haile Selassie, the diminutive strong man who ruled Ethiopia for more than half a century before he was deposed by the military last September, died today. He was 83.

The government said the former monarch was found dead in his bed by a servant early this morning.

Addis Ababa radio said Selassie died as a result of illness affecting his prostate gland. Last May, Selassie was reported seriously ill with a prostate condition.

Born Prince Tafari Makonnen on July 23, 1892, Selassie was not in the direct line for the throne. He was chosen regent and heir to share rule with his cousin, Queen Zauditu, after Emperor Lij Yasu was deposed in 1916.

Gradually, Tafari gained the upper hand and had himself proclaimed king in 1928 and emperor in 1930 after Queen Zauditu's death.

Since he was deposed last Sept. 12 Selassie had been confined in one of his former palaces in the Ethiopian capital, and access to him had been denied to outsiders.

Medical reports following his operation said he was mak ng a normal recovery. But then there was no further word on his condition.

Today's broadcast said that following a deterioration Tuesday, Selassie's only surviving daughter, Princess Tenagne-Work, had been permitted to visit him.

But there was apparently no fear his death was imminent, and the former absolute monarch of 27 million people died alone.

Taking the throne in 1928 when he was 36, he ruled for 41 of the next 46 years.

Mussolini's invading army drove him into exile in 1936. The British army brought him back to his throne in 1941 and he kept it until a slow-motion military coup culminated in his arrest last Sept. 12.

The bearded little old man was held in an apartment at the Grand Palace, his former stronghold on a hilltop overlooking Addis Ababa and now the headquarters of the military regime that overthrew him.

Last February he was reported in good health but subject to periods of mental confusion when he seemed to believe he was still on the throne.

In March, the leftist military government abolished the 3,000-year-old monarchy.

On May 23 the official Ethiopian radio announced that Haile Selassie was seriously ill and might need prostate surgery. That was the last word of him until the announcement today of his death.

Known as the Conquering Lion of Judah, Elect of God and King of Kings, the emperor began his long reign as a reformer. He built schools, roads and hospitals in a land where public hangings and slavery had been common and where landlords kept private armies.

But age and tradition prevented the emperor from keeping pace with Ethiopia's intellectuals and technocrats. The country, whose proudest boast was that it never had been colonized, stayed behind when newly independent Africa began modernizing itself in the 1960s.

Ironically, Selassie himself ordered the changes that eventually led to his downfall — the military training programs that exposed Ethiopian officers to democracy in the United States, and Haile Selassie University, where students learned to think in revolutionary terms.

Drought had taken more than 100,000 lives in Ethiopia by February 1974, when the armed forces mutinied for pay raises and then began nibbling away at the emperor's power and public support.

Though slightly built and barely 5 feet 2, the descendant of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, was an iron man who always used stern methods to suppress his enemies. Lij Yasu, the emperor from whom he seized the throne in 1928, was kept in chains for 19 years until he died.

Selassie was born Prince Tafari Makonnen on July 23, 1892, a member of the Ethiopian royal family but not in the direct line of succession to the throne. With the support of tribal barons he had himself proclaimed king in 1928 when there was friction between opposing factions of the royal family.

thinks it will. As the rates go up, many will decrease usage."

The Bernie City Council recently went on record in protest to the proposed increase, as did the Dexter City Council.

The position of many people at the hearing was stated when Thelma Christmas of Dexter said, "We are poor elderly people. Elderly people should be treated better than they are. We won't be able to pay the bills unless something changes."

The hearing was one of a number of meetings scheduled by the Public Service Commission to determine whether the requested rate increases should be allowed. Another wa held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Columbia and one is scheduled Sept. 15 in Jefferson City.

Robert Pierce, chairman of the PSC, conducted Tuesday's hearing. Before the hearing started, he told the crowd that the PSC reviews a company's expenses for the last 12 - month period, and if rates charged don't bring in enough money to meet operating expenses, a rate increase will be granted.

He also pointed out that Missouri Utilities does not generate power but purchases it from Union Electric Co.., which recently raised its rates. the PSC has no control over Union Electric, Pierce said, or what that firm charges for electricity.

Low income housing funds allocated

KANSAS CITY—William R. Moore, executive director of the Missouri Housing Development Commission, has announced that the commission has received set aside funds totaling $4.5 million, which represents a potential of approximately 1,500 units of low income housing for the state.

Moore stated that the allocation of the money statewide is based upon the fair share plan which is derived from data indicating the need for standard housing, taking into consideration six basic factors: population, poverty, housing overcrowding, housing vacancies, housing conditions and rent to income ratio.

Moore further stated that the commission has started accepting preliminary proposals for projects in the southeast portion of the state which includes the Meramec, Southeast Missouri, Scouth Central Ozark, Ozark Foothills and Bootheel Regional Planning Commissions.

The proposals must qualify under Federal Housing Authority insurance programs 221(d) or 221(d)4 as well as Section 8.

Anyone interested in submitting a proposal should contact the Missouri Housing Development Commission at 20 W. 9th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64105, telephone number 816-421-1045.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

"O men of Israel, listen! God publicly endorses Jesus of Nazareth by doing tremendous miracles through him, as you well know. But God, following his prearranged plan, let you use the Roman government to nail him to the cross and murder him. Then God released him from the horrors of death and brought him back to life again, for death could not keep this man within its grip.

Malden council sets salaries

MALDEN---Problems involving city streets, a proposed trailer park, city dump and salaries of city employes were handled by the City Council Monday night.

Mrs. Burtie Ward and Mrs. Norman Hinz complained to the council that a railroad crossing on Highway 25 was too rough, water stood on the highway near Olive Street, many yards were not kept up and light bills were too high.

City Clerk Roscoe Thornton said the council discussed the problems with the women but took no action on the matters.

A council meeting was set at 7 p.m. Friday at the city hall to discuss a proposed trailer park to be built in the industrial park.

The meeting was set after J.C. Forbes presented plans for the proposed park and asked to get together with the council to discuss the situation and possibly draw up a contract.

The meeting will be open to the public.

The council decided to station a city employe at the city dump. The employe will be at the dump for 90 days, beginning next week, and will show people where to dump refuse.

Thornton said dumping hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Wednesday and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday. The dump is closed on other days.

Louis Beck, an employe of the city street department, presented a petition to the council asking it to consider a 10 cent raise for employes.

The council agreed to meet with employes at 7 p.m. Sept. 2 for discussion on the matter.

The council decided to award insurance on all city buildings on a competitive bid basis. Thornton said that any company interested in submitting a bid should do so by Oct. 13.

The salary of the city clerk was increased from $606 to $700 per month, retroactive to July, and pay for firemen was set at $5 per call. Previously, firemen were paid $2.50 per call for a small fire, $3 for a larger fire and $5 for even larger fire.

The fire department fee to answer an out-of-town fire call was raised from $25 to $50.

A yard sale ordinance was also passed, limiting the number of yard sales any family can have to two per year. Thornton said some families have been having a continuous sale, and since the city could not license a yard sale by law, the families were running a business without having to buy a merchant's license.

The council also decided to gravel four blocks of Garland Street.

Bingham art work to tour 7 cities

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A seven city tour and exhibition of the works of Missouri 19th Century artist George Caleb Bingham will begin next month, according to Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

The exhibition, which will open Sept. 26 at the Nelson Gallery in Kansas City, will include 25 paintings and portraits by Bingham as well as the 112 drawings, which will be purchased from the Mercantile LVI-brary Association in St. Louis.

Bond signed the final agreement for acquisition of the drawings last week, culminating a year of negotiations to keep the collection in Missouri.

Those negotiations came after a speical citizens committee, Bingham Sketches, Inc., was formed by the governor following reports that the privately supported library was planning to sell the collection to individuals.

There will be a $1 admission to the exhibition with the proceeds going toward the $1.8 million purchase price for the collection os pen and ink sketches. The citizens committee must raise $1.2 million of that agreed to price by March 31.

The exhibition will run through Oct. 26 at the Nelson Gallery with the remaining six stops Nov. 14-Jan. 4 at the St. Louis Art Museum, Jan. 11-Jan. 21 at the Springfield Art Museum, Jan. 31-Feb. 7 at the Kent Library in Cape Girardeau, Feb. 13-March 7 at the Museum of art And Archaeology and State Historicial Sociatey of Missouri in Columbia, March 1-March 7 at the Mark Twain Museum in Hannibal and April 1-April 11 at the Albrecht Gallery and Museum of Art in St. Joseph.

A spokesman for the governor said the full exhibition will be on display in both St. Louis and Kansas City and then only portions of it will be shown at the other five galleries around the state.

Bingham was born in Virginia but moved to Missouri early in his childhood. He served in the state legislature from Saline County, as state treasurer, adjutant general and as the first president of the Kansas City Police Board.

The image of Manhattan

Packed with people and crammed with cars, Manhattan island is a dense agglomeration of buildings, bridges and ethnic heritages that vary block to block.

But most of all its is the center of more power than almost any city in the world — of Wall Street, the financial capital; of Broadway, the theatrical capital; of Madison Avenue, the advertising capital.

Here, too, lie the art and the communication capitals of the nation and of the world.

This is where came the millions, immigrants from across the ocean or across the land, here to the city where dreams are realized and shattered.

From the air, Manhattan is clearly an island, an imposing cluster of great edifices fairly daring the outsider to venture forth.

But once the outsider becomes an insider — wandering the streets, sampling the flavors of the world's most savory melting pot in the nation's biggest city — then there are the rewards of discovery, stimulation and endless chances, on the very edge of the land of opportunity.

Bond to meet with President on energy problem

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Gov. Christopher S. Bond will go to Washington later this week for a meeting with President Gerald Ford on the nation's energy situation.

The governor said his office received a telegram invitation Monday for the Thursday White House briefing by the Federal Energy Office on the energy problem, particularly the shortage of natural gas.

Bond noted that concern has been expressed in Missouri, with the exception of the St. Louis area, about the possibility of a natural gas shortage this winter.

He said information about the Missouri situation would be sought from federal offic ials and that the Missouri Department of Natural Resources Directork James Wilson might also attend the meeting.

wbond also said his office is "encouraged" by the recent report that a coal gasification plant might be built in Missouri.

It was reported Sunday that the southwestern part of the state is being considered as the site for at least one $700 milion plant to gasify coal.

The Department of Natural Resources has been working on several coal gasification projects, the governor said. He added that his office was following up the newspaper report and that "contact would be made shortly" with the firm which is considering the plant location.

Bond noted that Missouri is rich in coal reserves and he said coal gasification "is a good answer" to the nation's energy problems.

The governor also voiced strong opposition to new rules and regulations of the Army Corps of Engineers which he said will result in overlapping authority over some waterways in the state "if not outright preemption" of state control.

Those regulations were issued as the result of a recent federal court ruling in which the 1972 federal Water Pollution Control Act was interpreted to require the Corps to regulate all navigable waterways.

Bond said his office has been promised by all 12 members of the Missouri Congressional delegation that they will either introduce or support legislation eliminating that interpretation of the 1972 law.

"It's ridiculous to have a federal agency control every body of water, whether it's running or standing still," the governor said. "If you spilled coffee on the table you'd have to get a permit from the Corps to clean it up."

A hearing on the new rules, which would bring a number of rivers in the state under federal control including the Gasconade and Osage, will be held next month in Omaha.

News briefs from the animal world

BRIGHTON, Colo. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. George W. Moore are suing Adams County for $50,500, contending that the dog pound illegally destroyed their Manchester terrier named Tammy.

The suit filed Monday in Brighton District Court asks $500 for the dog, $25,000 for extreme mental pain and anguish and $25,000 in exemplary damages.

Moore, of Castle Rock, Colo., said he and his wife have been "heartsick" since the 9-year-old terrier was destroyed last March.

The suit charges that agents of the county picked up Tammy and "wantonly and negligently euthanized" her the same day because a pound employe mistakenly put a card on the door of her cage marking her for the death chamber.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — One of two ponies that turned up at an apartment complex died and was hauled away by a rendering service after a woman said she spent the weekend trying unsuccesfully to get help for him.

The other was rescued by a woman who said it will take at least a year for the animal to recover from injuries she said it received after three days of abuse by neighborhood children.

"This is the most hideous crime against animals I've ever listened to," said Frances Hutcheson, director of the Nashville Humane Association. "If we can find the children responsible, we will prosecute them through juvenile court."

Tillie Matthews said police had told her the animals were not a police matter. She said she also tried to get help from the humane association, but officials there say she may have reached the city pound instead.

John Carroll, president of the Nashville Association for the Protection of Animals, said the brown and white pony that died was found with its eyes gouged out.

"They set fire to him prior to his death," Carroll said. "It was a very horrible thing to view. From what I could pick up, four or five kids would get on him and the animal was so hot that it just couldn't go any further, even with a beating."

Carol Hoagey said she had the other pony picked up Monday and taken to a veterinarian. She said it will be boarded at a barn that she and friends rent in Hendersonsville after his injuries are cared for."

CINCINNATI (AP) — The dog days of summer shouldn't happen to a dog, says veterinary determatologist Dr. Pat Breen.

"When you start hearing people sneeze from ragweed, that's about the time you can expect to see pet owners lining up outside your door with their dogs," says Breen, himself a hay fever sufferer.

He says his patients may not sniffle or sneeze, but they get itchier as the pollen count rises.

"Dogs are allergic to pollens, molds and house dust," Breen said. "It used to be thought that dogs were just suffering from some kind of grass fungus, but that's not necessarily the case."

Breen also warned that those new wool doggie sweaters can be nothing but a nuisance to a pet who is allergic to wool.

"I had one dog who broke out in a rash when his owner bought him a plastic bowl," Dr. Breen said. "Then when the owner switched to crockery, the rash slowly cleared up."

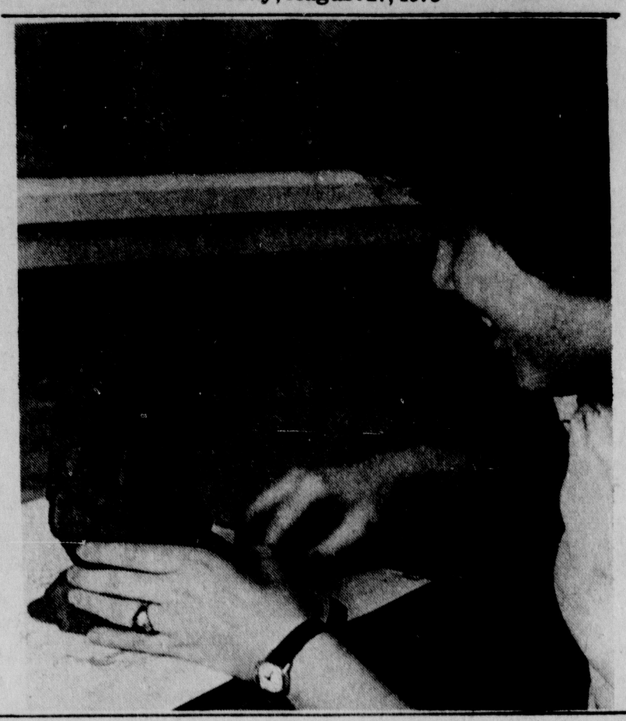
Bicentennial contest open for students

Registration is open until Nov. 15 for entries in the My America contest. Mrs. Miriam Fenderson, principal at Coopers Poynt School in Camden, New Jersey, assists pupils in getting entries in early. The contest, sponsored by the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania and the National Education Association, is open to all students from kindergarten through the 12th grade and covers the arts, crafts, letters and sciences.

Contest entry

Getting some last minute touches, this carved figuerine reminds us that religious freedom was one of the basic rights for which many of our ancestors flocked to America's shores. Ann Dorsey, a student at the Georgetown Visitation Prepatory School in Washington, D.C., is among the million of students across the nation entering the My America contest. Officially entitled, "My America: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", the contest is sponsored by the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania and the National Education Association.



Contest for expression of feelings

HARRISBURG, Pa., – Millions of school children across the nation are heading back to school with prospects of another challenging year. At least 53 of them will complete the year as nationally known celebrities.

A contest titled, "My America: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", will allow the nation's students from kindergarten through the 12th grade to express how they feel about their country in any of four different areas: arts, crafts, letters or sciences.

Public, parochial and independent students will all be competing in My America contest, co-sponsored by the Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania and the National Education Association.

Prizes will include bronze, silver and gold medals; an all-expense paid week-long trip to Pennsylvania the week of July 4, 1976; and cash awards for the national top three winners, besides national attention from the nation's press.

All during the summer, NEA offices have been supplying state offices with registration forms and information kits. This information was disseminated to local districts. Interested parents, students and teachers are requested to send requests to the state NEA offices for further information, not the national office.

Students competing on the local level, will first compete right in their own school. Then the district or region will select its winner who will go on to the state competition. In addition to one winner from each state, there will also be one winner selected from Washington, D. C. Guam and the NEA Overseas Education Association territories.

These 53 winners will receive a silver medal struck just for the Bicentennial and an all-expense-paidtrip to Pennsylvania for one week with their teacher - sponsor and parents.

There will be three national winners selected from the 53 finalists. The top first, second and third winners will receive cash prizes of $5,000, $2,500 and $1,500 to be used for educational purposes.

The first prize winner will also win a gold medal which will be the only one of its kind.

Announcement of the final winners will take place July 4, 1976.

Three choices given

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — Jack H. Baker opened his morning mail and discovered three water bills from the city, one for $.00, one for $10.95 and one for $187,209.08.

Baker blamed the excess billing to a computer error.

"We've been out of town most of the month and haven't even used much water," he said after getting the bills Thursday.

City Manager Bob Owen said he had no idea why Baker got three bills.

Baker said he won't have any trouble paying the bill — if he can choose the one he wants to pay.

Burn center specializes

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — It is a room full of hope and desperately quiet pain.

There is stillness except for an undercurrent of television, music and machinery. The patients do not move; most movements jangle already screaming nerve endings.

Dr. Mani M. Mani walks the aisle next to the beds of patients and their eyes follow him. Although he is only conducting a visitors' tour of the area, his eyes are also in motion, darting from patient monitor to patient and back again.

The room is the two-year-old Gene and Barbara Burnett Burn Center at the University of Kansas Medical Center. In its way, it is a hospital unto intself, with a kitchen, treatment room, operating room and staff to serve the patients occupying any of its 10 beds.

"Medically, we are probably the same as any hospital," said Mani, clinical director of the burn center, "but there is a major difference. We have concentrated our efforts in one geograpical area. We have physicians primarily trained and interested in burn treatment. Our ancillary help is all primarily concerned with one problem: Burns."

"In most hospitals, the patient would go from his room to a different room for treatment, for therapy or for an operation," Mani said. "Here we bring the facilities to the patient."

In addition to the normal medical personnel, the burn center has a psychiatrist, social service workers, a dietitian and researchers.

The segregation of the burn center from the rest of the hospital serves another, more urgent purpose: Stemming infection by isolating the patients from bacteria.

The unit operates its own air conditioning and air filtering system to keep bacteria from infiltrating the united from other parts of the hospital. Visitors and hospital workers must wear gowns, face masks and hair and shoe coverings before entering the ward.

"Our major concern is preventing infection," Mani said. "Thirty years ago, most burn patients died of shock. Now, most of those who die die from infection."

The burn center serves the State of Kansas. Burn victims within 100 miles of the center are brought by ambulance. Those father way are airlifted. In either case, Mani said, the first few minutes of treatment before transportation begins are the most important.

"Before anything else, the patient must be started on intervenous fluied," Mani said. "Burn patients lose bodily fluids very rapidly and this starts with the time of the injury. If the intravenous is not started immediately, we might lose the patient before he even arrives."

Highlights and sidelights

Many eligible for VA loans

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Need a loan to buy a house? If you're a veteran, you may be passing up low-cost loans available to you from the Veteran's Administration.

According to Steve Savis, Regional Director for the VA in St. Louis, as many as 473,000 Missouri veterans are eligible for VA-guaranteed loans, but are not using them.

Although the VA does not lend money itself, it assures a lending institution the Federal government will back up to $17,500 or 60 per cent of the cost, whichever is less, at an interest rate lower than the current market price.

In Missouri alone, 189,000 loans have been guaranteed since the beginning of the program for a total of $1,925,022,474.

Many veterans have used a VA loan once and do not realize they can obtain another one if they sell the original property and release the VA from the loan guarantee. This can be done by selling to another veteran who obtains his own VA loan, by selling to buyers with their own financing, or by paying off the VA loan.

With the loan released, the veteran is again eligible for VA assistance.

In addition many veterans obtained their loans when the guarantee ceiling was set at $12,500. This ceiling was raised, under the Veterans Housing Act of 1974, to $17,500, giving veterans with lower loans an additional $5,000 in eligibility.

The Act also authorized loans for mobile homes and lots and one-family condominiums.

Veterans who are eligible for a loan guarantee are those who served more than 90 days' active service between September 16, 1940, and July 25, 1947, or between June 27, 1950, and January 31, 1955.

Also eligible are veterans who have served at least 180 days' active duty since January 31, 1955.

To get a VA-guaranteed loan, you must first find a house you want to buy and go to a lending institution to borrow the necessary money. There you present your separation papers and a VA certificate of eligibility.

The house is appraised by the VA and you are given a certificate of reasonable value citing the worth of the house. If the lender agrees to the loan, the VA underwrites a portion of the loan, and you have a house.

Advantages of these loans include long repayment terms, up to 30 years, small or no cash down payments, interest rates of one-half to one per cent below the conventional rate and no penalty for paying the loan off ahead of schedule.

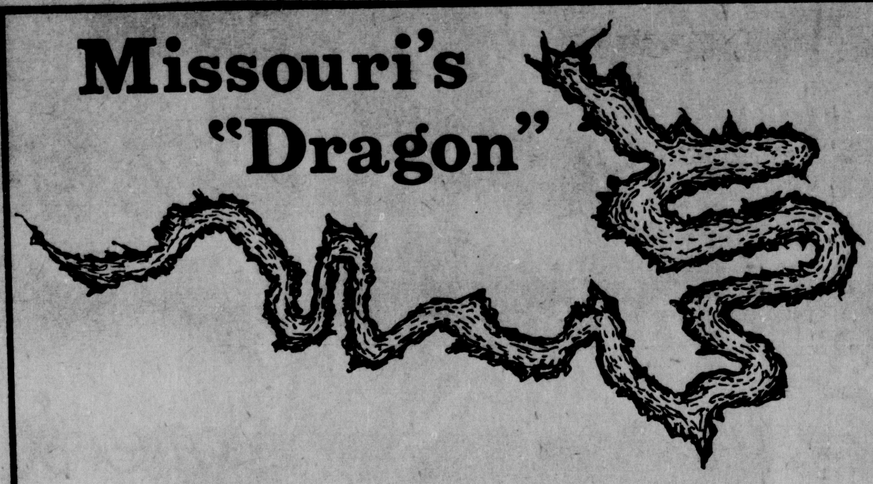
Missouri's "Dragon"



THE LAKE OF THE OZARKS, with more than 1,375 miles of wandering shoreline, is one of the largest man-made lakes in the world. Several mid-Missouri rivers were impounded with the completion of Bagnell Dam in 1931 to form this lake, sometimes called the "dragon" lake because of its winding, serpentine appearance when seen from the air. One of the most popular vacation areas in Missouri, the lake region features luxury resorts, rustic cabins, numerous golf courses and virtually every form of water-oriented recreation imaginable.

Savings bond letters illegal

WASHINGTON, D. C. — If someone asks you to join a money-making plan involving chain letters and U.S. Savings Bonds, you'd better refuse. You aren't likely to make any money -- it's more likely you'll lose your "investment" to get in on the deal -- and it's possible you may be prosecuted for violation of federal, state or local laws.

A few months ago, a number of endless- chain schemes were launched in Southern California. The intermingling organizations were active under several misleading names -- "Your March of Bonds", "Inflation Defense Foundation", "Century Club", "Exclusive One Million, Inc.", "Uncle Sam Investment, Inc." and "Six-Pack Club".

The scheme most often used worked this way -- the victim became an "active member" by paying $37.50 to a "sponsor". In return, he received a membership list of 10 names and a $25 savings bond, recently purchased for $18.75, made payable to the first person on the list. The new "member" made two new membership lists, crossing off the top name on the original list and adding his own name at the bottom. He then purchased two $25 bonds, payable to the person who was then first on the new lists. He delivered the bond that came with the first list to the person named -- personally or by mail.

As a "new member," he was required to pay annual dues of $3 and to purchase membership books, at $1.50 each, to give to the two "new members" he brought into the scheme. The victim had spent $81, but was told he would recover most of his investment when he sold his two lists. He did, in fact, recover $75, if he was able to do so.

However, for one member to receive $19,200 -- the promised windfall -- 1,024 new members would have had to join after he did, without the chain's being broken. To achieve "optimum success," the schemes required a membership of 250 times the entire population of the world.

Since the membership lists were originally prepared by the promoters – with their names and addresses or those of their associates heading the lists -- the scheme would provide bonds for the promoters long before -- if ever -- new members reaped any harvest.

The promoters of that plan used two variations -- the "Six Pack", involving lists with only six names, and the "Century Club", which used $100 bonds instead of $25 bonds.

The California attorney general, Los Angeles County district attorney and the Los Angeles city attorney cooperated in the investigation, arrests and convictions of the promoters, who were held in violation of the California penal code concerning endless- chains and lotteries.

Rather than circulate the lists or the bonds through the m ails, those promoters relied upon meetings in private homes to further their schemes. Had the mails been used, the promoters would have been in violationof the U.S. Code, Title 18, section 1302 -- the "lottery" statue -- which proscribes the mailing of material concerning a lottery promotion.

It establishes criminal sanctions of a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both, upon conviction. They would also have been in violation of Section 1341 -- the "mail fraud" statute.

Most of the "bottom-liners" involved in such schemes are relatively innocent of wrongdoing. They have no intention of perpetrating a fraudulent scheme or otherwise using the mails illegally. In addition to the promise of a dollar reward, they are often persuaded that they are being "patriotic" -- helping their government's savings bond program.

Over the years, the Department of the Treasury has advised the public that chain-letter schemes involving savings bonds – which are essentially get- rich- quick endeavors -- do a distinct disservice to the savings bond program. Instead of encouraging individuals to develop genuine savings plans, they create the illusion that participants are both aiding their government and themselves.

Even in the rare case where an individual receives a large return, it is likely that he would quickly redeem the bonds, thereby placing a further burden on the Treasury.

From time to time, the Treasury's Savings Bonds Division distirbutes news releases warning of the illegality of chain- letter schemes involving savings bonds. When a specific instance is brought to its attention, special releases are distributed to news media in the areas involved.

Individuals who purchase savings bonds for such chain-letter schemes, and who discover that participation may violate certain laws and regulations, may request a refund, using Treasury Form PD-2966. This form is available at many banks. It may also be requested from the Bureau of the Public Debt, 200 Third St., Parkersburg, W. Va. 26101.

Prophets and losses, the capital ledger

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A close friend of Alabama's George Wallace says the governor's people must prepare strategy to deal with an anticipated attempt by some presidential candidates to spread doubts about Wallace's physical ability to be chief executive. The friend suggests following the view of Mississippi's Ross Barnett Jr., who says: "I'd rather have a President who was paralyzed from the waist down than from the waist up" . . . In a book condemning excessive government regulation of business, Prof. Murray Weidenbaum says that there were 45,422 pages of new government regulations published last year, one of which, Naval Orange Regulation 311, mandates how many of the fruit may be shipped weekly from California to Arizona . . . Summer visitors in the Capital are shocked to find on sale at street corners here a publication encouraging violence in the name of right wing extremism. The periodical, called "Attack", is put out by an organization known as the New Alliance and carries "do it" articles and cartoons condemning race mixing and glorifying an assortment of brutalities against blacks, Jews and other minorities.

Increasing suspicions are being heard concerning the legitimacy of news articles that indicate large numbers of Americans can not recognize the Declaration of Independence, and thus in polls, refuse to endorse it. A typed copy of the document was recently shown to 25 people on the grounds of the Capitol and, contrary to popular negativism, only two people did not recognize it while only one (a woman from Britain) refused to endorse it . . . Superpatriot preacher Carl McIntire plans to build an "authentic Vietnamese hamlet" in Florida, stock it with Vietnamese refugees, and wow the tourists. Federal officers feel the plan is "in incredibly poor taste" and worry now that others may likewise try to exploit war refugees . . . The Federal welfare program admits to about a $1.1 billion annual waste by way of administration error, overpayment of benefits and applicant fraud . . . Donald Lambro, in his book "The Federal Rathole", says surgeons at Fitzsimons Army Medical Center last year performed, at taxpayer expense, 24 breast enlargements for wives of service personnel.

A political and philosophical storm is abuilding concerning whether last spring's $22 billion tax cut-rebate was, in the end, helpful. Already one key staff member of the President's Council On Economic Affairs says privately that "the economy was poised for an upturn anyway" and "It's unfortunate so many people do not understand the self-correcting aspects of our economy" . . . The American Federation of Government Employes, currently hinting about an imminent attempt to unionize the military, says it has received "many" letters from soldiers (to the rank of colonel) who want to be organizers . . . Without comment we note that federal employes have one of the best psychiatric care insurance policies of the day. Not only do 3.1 million bureaucrats receive free inpatient care but also an almost 80 per cent rebate for outpatient eventualities . . . Sexual escapades are nothing new in Washington, but a currently seated senator is often mentioned as the lustiest elected in town. Soybean savings

If you add soybean extender granules to hamburgers you can reduce the price of the meat by perhaps 50 cents a pound while maintaining its nutritional quality. With the usual hamburger decorations of catsup, mustard and relish, who'll notice?

Many eligible for VA loans

WASHINGTON, D.C.--Need a loan to buy a house? If you're a veteran, you may be passing up low-cost loans available to you from the Veteran's Administration.

According to Steve Savis, Regional Director for the VA in St. Louis, as many as 473,000 Missouri veterans are eligible for VA-guaranteed loans, but are not using them.

Although the VA does not lend money itself, it assures a lending institution the Federal government will back up to $17,500 or 60 per cent of the cost, whichever is less, at an interest rate lower than the current market price.

In Missouri alone, 189,000 loans have been guaranteed since the beginning of the program for a total of $1,925,022,474.

Many veterans have used a VA loan once and do not realize they can obtain another one if they sell the original property and release the VA from the loan guarantee. This can be done by selling to another veteran who obtains his own VA loan, by selling to buyers with their own financing, or by paying off the VA loan.

With the loan released, the veteran is again eligible for VA assistance.

In addition many veterans obtained their loans when the guarantee ceiling was set at $12,500. This ceiling was raised, under the Veterans Housing Act of 1974, to $17,500, giving veterans with lower loans an additional $5,000 in eligibility.

The Act also authorized loans for mobile homes and lots and one-family condominiums.

Veterans who are eligible for a loan guarantee are those who served more than 90 days' active service between September 16, 1940, and July 25, 1947, or between June 27, 1950, and January 31, 1955.

Also eligible are veterans who have served at least 180 days' active duty since January 31, 1955.

To get a VA-guaranteed loan, you must first find a house you want to buy and go to a lending institution to borrow the necessary money. There you present your separation papers and a VA certificate of eligibility.

The house is appraised by the VA and you are given a certificate of reasonable value citing the worth of the house. If the lender agrees to the loan, the VA underwrites a portion of the loan, and you have a house.

Advantages of these loans include long repayment terms, up to 30 years, small or no cash down payments, interest rates of one-half to one per cent below the conventional rate and no penalty for paying the loan off ahead of schedule.

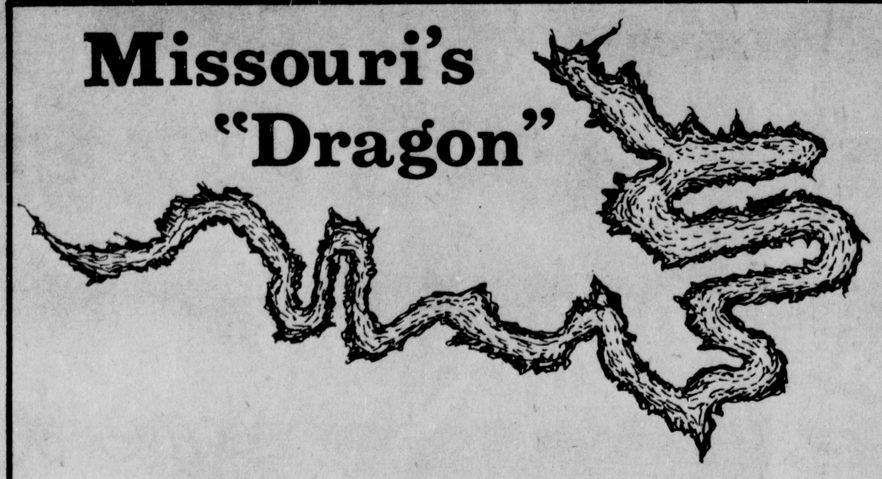
Missouri's "Dragon"



THE LAKE OF THE OZARKS, with more than 1,375 miles of wandering shoreline, is one of the largest man-made lakes in the world. Several mid-Missouri rivers were impounded with the completion of Bagnell Dam in 1931 to form this lake, sometimes called the "dragon" lake because of its winding, serpentine appearance when seen from the air. One of the most popular vacation areas in Missouri, the lake region features luxury resorts, rustic cabins, numerous golf courses and virtually every form of water-oriented recreation imaginable.

Laughter, to Jerry Lewis, shown with the Muscular Dystrophy Association poster child, Michael Newsome, is the best medicine one can give — or take. But like all good clowns, Lewis has a very serious side. For almost 25 years, he has worked hard for a cause he believes in deeply, serving as national chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy Association. By staging his annual 21½-hour Labor Day Telethon, Jerry has raised nearly $60 million to benefit the hundreds of thousands afflicted by neuromuscular disease.

How to complain most effectively

By ALFRED C. SIKES

JEFFERSON CITY—There is a right and a wrong way to complain. Should you ever feel the need to complain about abusive conduct of a business, you should know the best way to file a complaint.

Occasionally, consumers are provoked enough to complain about unjust treatment. The Missouri Department of Consumer Affairs has received many examples of different kinds of complaints within its one-year existence. And, the effective complaints can be easily separated from the ineffective ones.

A 10-page letter about a defective can opener would not be uncommon. Poorly written letters that tell only half the story in twice as many words as it would take to tell the whole story are often received. These only succeed in alienating the business as well as those from whom the letter seeks help.

On the other hand, the customer who explains the problem in a few, concise words will produce more positive reaction. Here are the commandments of complaining. Use them when you must.

1. First of all, make sure you have a legitimate complaint. Did the product break down because you failed to use it according to directions? Underserved complaints only harm the consumer cause. You should be able to pinpoint exactly where the business is at fault.

2. File your complaint in writing promptly with the business. Delays in reacting to a problem will detract from the seriousness of your complaint. Let them know you are concerned. If you are not prompt, do not expect the business to be.

3. State your case simply and clearly. Do not waste your time and get a businessman aggravated with a long, unnecessary account of your personal problems. Get to the poinh and explain precisely what redress you are seeking.

4. Include all relevant information such as copies of receipts, canceled checks, warranties, advertisements, purchase dates, names of sales personnel, model numbers and the exact nature of the problem. Do not send originals.

5. Send the complaint to the top executive who has authority in the office or division with which you have been in contact. Though that person may not respond directly, he or she will likely request that it be done, a request that carries weight.

6. If Step 5 does not produce results, write another letter that is firmer and expresses your disappointment in the lack of an adequate response. Send copies of that letter and the first one to your local Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau and other consumer agencies and the trade association of the business. Attach a letter to someone in each organization requesting assistance.

A letter of complaint can be successful for consumers who have legitimate complaints about unjust treatment. Make your complaint effective and you will have a better chance at receiving positive results.

Telethon features many top stars

NEW YORK—This year's Jerry Lewis Telethon has scored another show business coupl. The Labor Day spectacular will feature portions of two top Las Vegas stage extravaganzas--the Stardust Hotel "Lido de Paris" review and Dick Clark's Rock & Roll Review from the Thunderbird.

News of the special telethon segments was announced by the show's producer-director, Arthur Forrest, who added: "We're planning 2 ½ hours of the most star-packed entertainment ever seen on television." The annual event raises funds to support the research and patient service programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

" With a record 195 JTV stations signed on to broadcast our supershow," Forrest said, "all of us involved in staging Telethon '75 have high hopes of topping the more than $16 million raised last year."

For the third consecutive year, the supershow will originate live from the Space Center at Del Webb's Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas, beginning Sunday at 9 p.m. (EDT), and ending 21 ½ hours later at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

Telethon stations in Puerto Rico and Hawaii will receive the show via satellite. Viewers in Alaska and Guam will see the program via tape delay.

Forrest reported that among the stars already scheduled for Telethon appearances are: Robert Blake, Geraldine Brooks, Art Carney, Vikki Carr, Cher, Dorothy Collins, Bert Convy, Joan Crawford, Scatman Crothers, The Devonnes, Herb Edelman, Chad Everett, Totie Fields, Mickey Finn, Marvin Hamlisch, the Happy Jesters, Dick Haymes, Julius LaRosa, Jack Lemmon, Lorna Luft, Maureen McGovern, Walter Matthau, Jose Molina dancers, Bob Newhart, Wayne Newton, Jack Palance, Budd Schulbert, Robert Shaw, Frank Sinatra Jr., Mary Stuart, Leslie Uggams, Robert Wagner and Natalie Wood.

Veteran telethon anchorman Ed McMahon will again back up Lewis this year.

A special one-hour network "feed" featuring the biggest stars in the east will originate from the New York City telethon affiliate, WNEW-TV, from 11 a.m. to noon (EDT) Monday. Lewis will host the New York segment via split-screen from telethon "home base" in Las Vegas.

Fame brings hassle

PROSPERITY, W.Va. (AP) — Mrs. Beatrice Gill strode to her wooden fence, waving her arms at the people with cameras who crept around the two giant green-and-chrome trucks toward her once-quiet home.

"Go on back," she shouted, her sunburned brow furrowing. "There's nothing you can see ... that crying baby ruined the whole scene."

The parents of the tot edged back. They looked guilty at having interfered with the filming of an episode of NBC's "Movin' On," which moved into Raleigh County this summer for a story about coal mining.

"It's more of a hassle than I ever thought," sighed Mrs. Gill, whose house was being used for some scenes in the show. "I'm really getting tore up."

She said the "Movin' On" people just knocked on her door one day and asked to use her house for filming, probably because it has what Hollywood calls authenticity. It sits alone, surrounded by piles of coal waste and there's an abandoned tipple nearby.

"Movin' On," filmed entirely on location, circled the West and Northwest last season. The West Virginia trip was its first venture East and the story it was filming concerned a strike by coal miners.

They worked at a small coal mine, "Prosperity No. 1," whose owner, portrayed by Patricia Neal, can't afford to pay salaries and meet state and federal mine safety rules at the same time.

Her non-union miners go on strike for improved safety conditions after a roof fall at the mine. It forces the two trucker-stars of the series to take sides in the dispute.

The tough, pragmatic Sonny Pruitt (played by Claude Adkins) keeps on delivering supplies to the mine, saying he's just trying to make a living.

His partner, the college-educated Will Chandler (Frank Converse) takes the side of the striking miners.

John Wilson, location producer of the episode, said he wrote to various state chambers of commerce in coal-producing states when seeking a good spot to film the show. West Virginia got the nod.

He said when he heard about the Beckley Exhibition Mine, a city-owned mine that has been made into a coal-mining museum, he decided that "it was a natural for our purposes."

Mrs. Gill's grey frame, four-room, located near a closed mine, was cast in the show as the home of a miner, Sampson Eubanks (played by Gary Merrill), who is leading the strike against "Prosperity No. 1."

Despite Mrs. Gill's efforts to keep crowds away and the attempt by the "Movin' On" crews to keep filming sites secret, a constant stream of people kept driving along the road in front of her home north of Beckley, edging by sheriff's deputies and taking snapshots of Converse and Adkins and their trucks.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Moses anointed and sanctified each part of the Tabernacle, including the altar and its utensils, on the day he finished setting it up. Then the leaders of Israel, organized the census, brought their offerings. They brought six covered wagons, each drawn by two oxen—a wagon for every two leaders and an ox for each one; and they presented them to the Lord in front of the Tabernacle. "Accept their gifts," the Lord told Moses, "and use these wagons for the work of the Tabernacle."

He said when he heard about the Beckley Exhibition Mine, a city-owned mine that has been made into a coal-mining museum, he decided that "it was a natural for our purposes."

Mrs. Gill's grey frame, fourroom, located near a closed mine, was cast in the show as the home of a miner, Sampson Eubanks (played by Gary Merrill), who is leading the strike against "Prosperity No. 1."

Despite Mrs. Gill's efforts to keep crowds away and the attempt by the "Movin' On" crews to keep filming sites secret, a constant stream of people kept driving along the road in front of her home north of Beckley, edging by sheriff's deputies and taking snapshots of Converse and Adkins and their trucks.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

Moses anointed and sanctified each part of the Tabernacle, including the altar and its utensils, on the day he finished setting it up. Then the leaders of Israel, organized the census, brought their offerings. They brought six covered wagons, each drawn by two oxen—a wagon for every two leaders and an ox for each one; and they presented them to the Lord in front of the Tabernacle. "Accept their gifts," the Lord told Moses, "and use these wagons for the work of the Tabernacle."

Film produces says 'Enough'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two years ago Italian producer Dino de Laurentiis told his wife at their Roman villa, "I'm going to America."

His wife, the beauteous star Silvana Mangano, said, "How many days will you stay?"

"I'm not going to visit, but to stay," he replied.

"I don't believe you," said his wife.

Nor did the Italian film industry, of which de Laurentiis was the kingpin. But he did indeed move his family and his operations first to New York, now to Hollywood.

He has already produced several films, including the controversial and successful "Death Wish" and "Mandigo" and the upcoming "Three Days of the Condor" with Robert Redford and Faye Dunaway.

He plans to release 10 films in 1976.

The producer now operates from BEVERLY Hills.

"I had to move out from New York," de Laurentiis explained in an interview. "The talent is here, and I was wasting a day each way as I flew back and forth from New York."

He wastes little time. It is his speed of operation, he says, that allows him to compete with the long-established American companies.

"I think I am the only company head in Hollywood who can make his own decisions," he remarked.

"All of the others must consult their board of directors or their presidents. When I make a decision, that's it. If I read a book manuscript and like it, I buy it. If you wait for the book to be published, you will never get it."

With such a philosophy he has acquired two of the nation's bestsellers — "Ragtime," which will be filmed by Robert Altman, and "The Great Train Robbery," which Michael Crichton will adapt from his own novel.

Dino de Laurentiis is a vigorous 56. His English continues to improve, but sometimes he buzzes his bilingual secretary to translate a word like "bureaucracy."

Why did he leave Italy?

"In some ways it is very easy to explain, in other ways it is not. In September 1973, when I made the move, I was beginning to smell a situation in Italy that was not good.

"In every country the economic situation is related to the political situation. When the political situation gets bad, then the country's economy goes bad. That is just what has happened in Italy.

"Also production costs have risen higher and higher in Italy. Italian actors can cost just as much as American actors, but the difference is that the Italians don't mean anything in other countries, and the Americans do.

"I know it is possible to still make money on pictures for Italy alone. But I am not interested in making films only for Italy.

"And the bureaucracy in Italy has become terrible. So I put all these problems together and I said, 'Enough.'"

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Satellite photographs are being used by scientists here to evaluate about 100 of the nation's lakes in studies which may cut costs for future water quality monitoring.

Using the Earth Resources Technology Satellite, the study group examines photographs taken from 569 miles and compares them with ground samples.

David Boland, physical geography expert for the U.S. Environmental Research Center, says the team may eventually determine the quality of lakes without visiting them.

Boland said the survey is designed to identify major lakes which have potential or existing "aging problems" caused by municipal sewage discharges and runoff from other sources.

The postal delivery service

Why there are delays

associated Press Writer

Americans mail almost one billion letters a week. Millions of them reach their destinations later than they should, and some never arrive. Why?

Like the girl in the nursery rhyme who was either very good or horrid, the combination of machinery and human beings at work handling the U.S. mail can mesh beautifully one minute to provide good service, then mess everything up the next.

Postal officials minimize the extent of delays, claiming that service is good and complaints are declining. But examples of foulups abound:

—A company in New York mails an envelope of paychecks to its Phoenix office for distribution to employes there. The envelope arrives eight days later.

—A young woman mails a bill payment to a local department store three days before the deadline for receipt. It arrives five days after the deadline, and she is charged interest because it was late.

—Two letters, mailed in the same box at the same time, reach neighboring destinations several days apart.

The Postal Service calculates that it provides "on time" delivery for 24 out of every 25 local letters and for 23 out of every 25 long-distance letters.

"On time" means the next day within metropolitan areas if a letter is picked up by 5 p.m.; within two days if a letter is traveling 600 miles or less; and within three days if a domestic letter must travel more than 600 miles. Sunday is not counted as a "day."

There are reasons to question the accuracy of the Postal Service figures, but if they are accepted and applied to statistics showing that there is roughly a 50-50 split between metropolitan and long-distance mail, they point to late arrival each week for 20 million metropolitan letters and 40 million long-distance letters.

The sampling system the Postal Service uses to gauge delivery speed is unable to provide estimates on how many letters are lost.

From the time you put a letter in a mail box until it reaches its destination, it must cope with dozens of opportunities for delay.

Drivers assigned to collection routes have been known to miss pickups at certain boxes, a letter can get lost in the folds of a mail sack or other cracks and crevices along the way, bad weather can disrupt airplane and truck schedules, post offices may not have enough clerks on duty, and carriers can make mistakes.

But the number of delays caused by these problems are minuscule. Most often, the blame for delays — especially those of several days — can be traced to the letter-sorting process.

Any analysis of the sorting process quickly focuses on the machinery that is used, especially the large letter-sorting machines where man, machinery and the U.S. mail encounter notable success and disaster.

These machines, and the sorting clerks who operate them, handle roughly half of the letters mailed in the United States at least once — and ofen three or four times if a letter must be routed through several post offices.

Clerks sorting letters the old way — by hand, into a box of pigeonholes — also make mistakes, but postal officials acknowledge that the method involves fewer errors than the combination of men and machines. Officials add, however, that the hand method is slower and more expensive.

The typical letter-sorting machine — an LSM in postal jargon — is a rectangular metal box abou four feet wide, taller than the walls of the average one-story house and almost twice as long.

Twelve clerks, sitting at desk-size consoles attached to the LSM, look at letters that are placed in front of them at the rate of about one per second by a little mechanical wrist with a suction cup hand. For each letter, a clerk types two or three numbers — usually part of the zip code — that the machine uses to route the envelope to one of the 277 aluminum sorting bins that honeycomb one side of the machine.

The problem is that some letters don't get to the right bins, either because the operator strikes a wrong key or because the machine makes a mistake. And some letters never get to any bin — they fall into the works and must be pulled out later, often in mutilated form. Sometimes it's possible to decipher the address, sometimes it isn't.

The government's General Accounting Office, reporting last summer on a check of LSM operations in three Southern post offices, said console operators have a "rigorous and tedious job."

GAO found that 30 per cent of the 141 operators it tested made errors 10 per cent of the time, and "only 18 per cent were within the 2 per cent error rate allowed for qualification" as an LSM operator. GAO blamed the machines themselves for errors 1.8 per cent of the time.

Apply the percentages to LSM volume, and you're quickly into the millions. Postal officials say 562 LSMs in operation nationwide sort an average of 25,000 letters per hour, eight hours per day.

Assume that man and machine have a total error rate of 5 per cent, and it works out to 702,500 mistakes per hour, or 5.62 million per day. That's still a fraction of total volume, but it's enough to cause a lot of problems. It's also expensive — GAO estimated that rehandling missorted mail cost $1,060 per day in one post office.

Postal officials say their first line of defense against mistakes is manned by clerks who empty the machine bin. The clerks riffle through the letters, culling out hundreds of missorted ones per hour. But mistakes still slip through the defense line.

An Associated Press reporter, who wondered how many mistakes are not caught, obtained permission to check the trays where letters are placed after they have been riffled by clerks.

Any letter not headed for the destination marked on the tray faces a needless journey, unless it is lucky enough to be caught in one of the spot checks postal officials say are made of riffling efficiency.

On visits to six post offices in five Eastern cities, the reporter selected at random trays containing letters not due to be looked at again until they reached post offices in the Midwest and West.

Out of 4,657 letters checked, 267 — or 5.7 per cent — would have gone astray for several days if they had not been spotted by the reporter. They included 128 letters that would normally have reached their destinations the next day.

Even if a letter reaches the correct LSM bin, however, it still faces sorting hazards that can cause long delays.

Every so often a riffling clerk takes a handful of envelopes from a bin and eliminates mistakes, but places the bundle in the wrong tray. That appeared to have been the reason for many of the errors in the tray of mail from Kansas City — missorted leters appeared in clusters, suggesting that a clerk had mistakenly put handfuls of letters for Missouri cities in the tray for New York mail.

Once a tray is filled, new hazards for misrouting appear. The letters travel in bags or in cardboard containers that postal workers say are occasionally mislabeled. And even if correctly labeled, it's possible for dock workers to load the bags on the wrong truck.

In its report on mail delays, the GAO concluded: "The Service has not been completely successful in meeting its first-class mail delivery standards. This situation is due in part to the amount of missent mail. Although the high productivity of LSMs has helped the Service handle the increasing mail volume, operator errors and careless handling of sorted mail have, to a certain extent, defeated the objectives of mechanization and added to the cost of mail delivery."

Miracle No. 1

Miracle Whip Salad Dressing's one-of-a-kind taste. Made from a special blend of spices to turn whatever you make into something special.

Presents Miracle No. 10

In today's world, a little savings can seem like a little miracle.

Film produces says 'Enough'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two years ago Italian producer Dino de Laurentiis told his wife at their Roman villa, "I'm going to America."

His wife, the beauteous star Silvana Mangano, said, "How many days will you stay?"

"I'm not going to visit, but to stay," he replied.

"I don't believe you," said his wife.

Nor did the Italian film industry, of which de Laurentiis was the kingpin. But he did indeed move his family and his operations first to New York, now to Hollywood.

He has already produced several films, including the controversial and successful "Death Wish" and "Mandigo" and the upcoming "Three Days of the Condor" with Robert Redford and Faye Dunaway.

He plans to release 10 films in 1976.

The producer now operates from BEVERLY Hills.

"I had to move out from New York," de Laurentiis explained in an interview. "The talent is here, and I was wasting a day each way as I flew back and forth from New York."

He wastes little time. It is his speed of operation, he says, that allows him to compete with the long-established American companies.

"I think I am the only company head in Hollywood who can make his own decisions," he remarked.

"All of the others must consult their board of directors or their presidents. When I make a decision, that's it. If I read a book manuscript and like it, I buy it. If you wait for the book to be published, you will never get it."

With such a philosophy he has acquired two of the nation's bestsellers — "Ragtime," which will be filmed by Robert Altman, and "The Great Train Robbery," which Michael Crichton will adapt from his own novel.

Dino de Laurentiis is a vigorous 56. His English continues to improve, but sometimes he buzzes his bilingual secretary to translate a word like "bureaucracy."

Why did he leave Italy?

"In some ways it is very easy to explain, in other ways it is not. In September 1973, when I made the move, I was beginning to smell a situation in Italy that was not good.

"In every country the economic situation is related to the political situation. When the political situation gets bad, then the country's economy goes bad. That is just what has happened in Italy.

"Also production costs have risen higher and higher in Italy. Italian actors can cost just as much as American actors, but the difference is that the Italians don't mean anything in other countries, and the Americans do.

"I know it is possible to still make money on pictures for Italy alone. But I am not interested in making films only for Italy.

"And the bureaucracy in Italy has become terrible. So I put all these problems together and I said, 'Enough.'"

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Satellite photographs are being used by scientists here to evaluate about 100 of the nation's lakes in studies which may cut costs for future water quality monitoring.

Using the Earth Resources Technology Satellite, the study group examines photographs taken from 569 miles and compares them with ground samples.

David Boland, physical geography expert for the U.S. Environmental Research Center, says the team may eventually determine the quality of lakes without visiting them.

Boland said the survey is designed to identify major lakes which have potential or existing "aging problems" caused by municipal sewage discharges and runoff from other sources.

The postal delivery service

Why there are delays

associated Press Writer

Americans mail almost one billion letters a week. Millions of them reach their destinations later than they should, and some never arrive. Why?

Like the girl in the nursery rhyme who was either very good or horrid, the combination of machinery and human beings at work handling the U.S. mail can mesh beautifully one minute to provide good service, then mess everything up the next.

Postal officials minimize the extent of delays, claiming that service is good and complaints are declining. But examples of foulups abound:

—A company in New York mails an envelope of paychecks to its Phoenix office for distribution to employes there. The envelope arrives eight days later.

—A young woman mails a bill payment to a local department store three days before the deadline for receipt. It arrives five days after the deadline, and she is charged interest because it was late.

—Two letters, mailed in the same box at the same time, reach neighboring destinations several days apart.

The Postal Service calculates that it provides "on time" delivery for 24 out of every 25 local letters and for 23 out of every 25 long-distance letters.

"On time" means the next day within metropolitan areas if a letter is picked up by 5 p.m.; within two days if a letter is traveling 600 miles or less; and within three days if a domestic letter must travel more than 600 miles. Sunday is not counted as a "day."

There are reasons to question the accuracy of the Postal Service figures, but if they are accepted and applied to statistics showing that there is roughly a 50-50 split between metropolitan and long-distance mail, they point to late arrival each week for 20 million metropolitan letters and 40 million long-distance letters.

The sampling system the Postal Service uses to gauge delivery speed is unable to provide estimates on how many letters are lost.

From the time you put a letter in a mail box until it reaches its destination, it must cope with dozens of opportunities for delay.

Drivers assigned to collection routes have been known to miss pickups at certain boxes, a letter can get lost in the folds of a mail sack or other cracks and crevices along the way, bad weather can disrupt airplane and truck schedules, post offices may not have enough clerks on duty, and carriers can make mistakes.

But the number of delays caused by these problems are minuscule. Most often, the blame for delays — especially those of several days — can be traced to the letter-sorting process.

Any analysis of the sorting process quickly focuses on the machinery that is used, especially the large letter-sorting machines where man, machinery and the U.S. mail encounter notable success and disaster.

These machines, and the sorting clerks who operate them, handle roughly half of the letters mailed in the United States at least once — and ofen three or four times if a letter must be routed through several post offices.

Clerks sorting letters the old way — by hand, into a box of pigeonholes — also make mistakes, but postal officials acknowledge that the method involves fewer errors than the combination of men and machines. Officials add, however, that the hand method is slower and more expensive.

The typical letter-sorting machine — an LSM in postal jargon — is a rectangular metal box abou four feet wide, taller than the walls of the average one-story house and almost twice as long.

Twelve clerks, sitting at desk-size consoles attached to the LSM, look at letters that are placed in front of them at the rate of about one per second by a little mechanical wrist with a suction cup hand. For each letter, a clerk types two or three numbers — usually part of the zip code — that the machine uses to route the envelope to one of the 277 aluminum sorting bins that honeycomb one side of the machine.

The problem is that some letters don't get to the right bins, either because the operator strikes a wrong key or because the machine makes a mistake. And some letters never get to any bin — they fall into the works and must be pulled out later, often in mutilated form. Sometimes it's possible to decipher the address, sometimes it isn't.

The government's General Accounting Office, reporting last summer on a check of LSM operations in three Southern post offices, said console operators have a "rigorous and tedious job."

GAO found that 30 per cent of the 141 operators it tested made errors 10 per cent of the time, and "only 18 per cent were within the 2 per cent error rate allowed for qualification" as an LSM operator. GAO blamed the machines themselves for errors 1.8 per cent of the time.

Apply the percentages to LSM volume, and you're quickly into the millions. Postal officials say 562 LSMs in operation nationwide sort an average of 25,000 letters per hour, eight hours per day.

Assume that man and machine have a total error rate of 5 per cent, and it works out to 702,500 mistakes per hour, or 5.62 million per day. That's still a fraction of total volume, but it's enough to cause a lot of problems. It's also expensive — GAO estimated that rehandling missorted mail cost $1,060 per day in one post office.

Postal officials say their first line of defense against mistakes is manned by clerks who empty the machine bin. The clerks riffle through the letters, culling out hundreds of missorted ones per hour. But mistakes still slip through the defense line.

An Associated Press reporter, who wondered how many mistakes are not caught, obtained permission to check the trays where letters are placed after they have been riffled by clerks.

Any letter not headed for the destination marked on the tray faces a needless journey, unless it is lucky enough to be caught in one of the spot checks postal officials say are made of riffling efficiency.

On visits to six post offices in five Eastern cities, the reporter selected at random trays containing letters not due to be looked at again until they reached post offices in the Midwest and West.

Out of 4,657 letters checked, 267 — or 5.7 per cent — would have gone astray for several days if they had not been spotted by the reporter. They included 128 letters that would normally have reached their destinations the next day.

Even if a letter reaches the correct LSM bin, however, it still faces sorting hazards that can cause long delays.

Every so often a riffling clerk takes a handful of envelopes from a bin and eliminates mistakes, but places the bundle in the wrong tray. That appeared to have been the reason for many of the errors in the tray of mail from Kansas City — missorted leters appeared in clusters, suggesting that a clerk had mistakenly put handfuls of letters for Missouri cities in the tray for New York mail.

Once a tray is filled, new hazards for misrouting appear. The letters travel in bags or in cardboard containers that postal workers say are occasionally mislabeled. And even if correctly labeled, it's possible for dock workers to load the bags on the wrong truck.

In its report on mail delays, the GAO concluded: "The Service has not been completely successful in meeting its first-class mail delivery standards. This situation is due in part to the amount of missent mail. Although the high productivity of LSMs has helped the Service handle the increasing mail volume, operator errors and careless handling of sorted mail have, to a certain extent, defeated the objectives of mechanization and added to the cost of mail delivery."

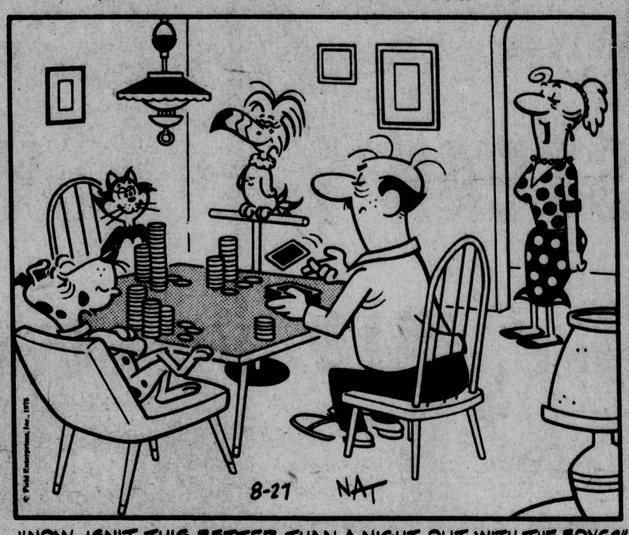
"Sorry to stop you, sir, but I thought you'd like to know we caught the reckless driver who ran you off the road a few miles back."

CARNIVAL by Dick Turner

"Why don't you bring your young man out of the kitchen sometime, Janie, and introdyce me to the rest of him?"

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

"Just where did my ambassador of ill-will rove today?"



"NOW, ISN'T THIS BETTER THAN A NIGHT OUT WITH THE BOYS?"

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, August 27, the 239th day of 1975. There are 126 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, American troops began landing in Japan at the end of Wold War II. It was the first foreign occupation of the country in modern history.

On this date:

In 55 B.C., Roman forces under Julius Caesar invaded Britain.

In 1776, the British were victorious in a Revolutionary War battle on Long Island, N.Y.

In 1859, the first oil well in the United States was drilled near Titusville, Pa.

In 1862, the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, was seized as he was on his way to capture Rome.

In 1928, the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war was signed in Paris.

In 1939, Nazi Germany demanded Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

Ten years ago: An executive order by President Lyndon Johnson said men between ages of 19 and 26 who got married from that day on would not be exempt from the draft.

Five years ago: A new round of Middle East peace talks was beginning under United Nations special representative Gunnar Jarring.

One year ago: A Soviet spacecraft with a two-man crew was shot into orbit to dock with a satellite launched in June.

Today's birthdays: Economist Walter Heller is 60. Democratic Representative Samuel Stratton of New York is 59.
